Mr. Kennedy's Used Car

In a very real sense, President Kennedy's foreign policy problem is much like that of a man who buys a second-hand car. He thereby acquires another man's troubles.

Mr. Kennedy has inherited the foreign policy machine of the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. With it came the troubles. It is important to recall, and to keep in mind, that before that strong-willed and honest man died, he himself had seen that his procedures had not succeeded. He had said to President Eisenhower but a few months before death:

"Mr. President, if the time ever comes when we have played our last card and still haven't been able to attain agreements, then you must not hesitate to use your great personal prestige. It is great. Everywhere I have been I have encountered nothing but respect for you. If it is needed, you must use it."

This was precisely what Mr. Eisenhower was seeking to do when he agreed to go to the Paris summit meeting, to Japan and Russia. Khrushchev halted the sessions at Paris with a coarse and brutal display of personal vindictiveness. The invitation for the Moscow visit was withdrawn. Mobs caused a cancellation in Tokyo.

But in considering Mr. Kennedy's predicament, which also is that of the country, perspective demands of us that we keep in mind that Mr. Dulles himself knew, in his last days, that his policies had not been successful.

Kaiser and Hitler

Mr. Dulles entertained a conviction that if the United States had made its position clear, and bolstered it with public commitments, the Kaiser would not have begun the first world war and Hitler would not have precipitated the second.

Most of the arguments sustaining this conclusion are a bit too glib and superficial. But many others believe with Mr. Dulles that had these Germans, so widely separated in character and background, understood just what the United States would do, they might not have provided the catalysts which produced war—the invasion, respectively, of Belgium and of Poland.

A sounder conclusion is that both these men believed themselves so superiorly prepared they were sure Europe could be conquered before the United States could intervene. The United States, they and their advisers thought, could be presented with a fait accompli. We have only to remember that in the months before both wars the United States itself did not know what it would do. Had the Germans not begun unrestricted submarine warfare in 1916-17 the United States would have remained neutral for a much longer time. We did not enter the second war. We were attacked at Pearl Harbor.

Massive Power

Be all this as it may, Mr. Dulles, along with other sincere persons, believed that if the massive power of this country were publicly committed, it would deter war. This was the basis of his foreign policy. This was why he busied himself setting up treaty organizations even in the distant Pacific. This explains why Mr. Kennedy found himself committed to defend Laos.

Mr. Dulles also worked out treaty arrangements for other areas which present the most impossible problems of logistics. Many of them are within marching distance of huge Chinese armies as well as the battle-toughened forces of Communist Viet Nam.

Now, of course, Mr. Dulles never really envisioned having to meet those commitments. His belief was that our potential enemies would not attack in the face of them.

This assumption ceased to be true well before Mr. Dulles died. The Russians attained nuclear weapons and missile capacity to match our own. Even more important was the rise of Red China power.

So it is that Mr. Kennedy is embarrassed. He may find it necessary to honor an impossible commitment to avoid the disaster of causing our allies to believe no U.S. treaty is good.

President, Menshikov Meet Today

By E. W. KENWORTHY
Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy returned from Florida Monday and faced a capital divided over prospect of a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting at this time.

The President looked refreshed from his four-day holiday in Palm Beach when he and Mrs. Kennedy arrived at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland at 4:20 p.m.

Kennedy declined to answer questions about reports from Palm Beach that a meeting with Khrushchev early in June was being considered seriously.

Later press secretary Pierre Salinger announced that Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov would confer with Kennedy Tuesday at the White House. Salinger said the ambassador had requested the meeting without disclosing the subject he wished to discuss. It was understood that Menshikov had a message to deliver to Kennedy.

White House and State department officials confirmed that there had been exchanges on a summit conference. But they said that no firm agreement had been reached.

Nevertheless, they indicated that an agreement on a meeting was possible before the end of the week, following an exchange with Moscow and "other consultations."

Seoul Seized by Rebels; U.S. Supports Premier

SEOUL (UPI)—The top U.S. and U.N. commander in the Republic of Korea announced Tuesday firm opposition to the military coup that seized power in the nation and called upon coup leaders to return power to the legal government.

Gen. Carter B. Magruder, commander in chief of the U.N. Command and U.S. forces, demanded that the generals who led the lightning pre-dawn military coup "support the legally recognized government" of Premier John M. Chang.

The U.S. stand could deal a death blow to the coup, observers here said. Republic of Korea troops are under Magruder's command.

U.S. BACKS MAGRUDER

The U.S. Embassy in Seoul fully endorsed Magruder's action. Charge d'Affaires Marshall Green said, "The position taken by the commander in chief of the U.N. command in supporting the freely elected and constitutionally established government of the Republic of Korea is one in which I fully concur."

The revolt headed by Korean two and three star generals erupted in pre-dawn darkness with fighting in the streets of Seoul between troops including Marines and paratroopers and civilian police. Within two and one-half hours the generals announced they controlled the nation.

Later Tuesday revolt leaders sent tanks into the streets of Seoul and there were reports Chang had sought asylum in the U.S. Embassy.

Green put the U.S. position strongly.

SUPPORTING CHANG

"I wish to make it emphatically clear," he said, "that the United States supports the constitutional government of the Republic of Korea as elected by the people of this republic last July as constituted last August with election of a prime minister."

The United States controls all military supplies going to Republic of Korea armed forces and

U.S. Agrees; Laos Talks Start Today

By DREW MIDDLETON

GENEVA — With U.S. acquiescence, Britain and the Soviet Union Monday night summoned 12 other nations to meet Tuesday and begin the 14-nation conference on the destiny of Laos.

Four days of haggling on the seating of three rival Laotian delegations was ended by agreement between the two powers to seat those representatives of Laos nominated by the individual governments at the conference.

RUSK SENDS NOTE

Secretary of State Dean Rusk immediately dispatched a formal note to the Soviet Union and Britain proposing a representative from the royal Laotian government as "a participant" in the conference.

The note restated the U.S. conviction that the royal government is the "only duly constituted government of Laos."

LONG FIGHT ENDS

The U.S., Rusk said later, had agreed to start the conference despite the absence of a general agreement on the seating of the three Laotian groups "in order to get as quickly as possible to the central purpose of the conference." This, he said, is "an international agreement on the neutrality and independence of Laos and on international machinery to insure neutrality and independence."

The statement was the last gun of a long rearguard action fought

Paid Councilmen $4,000, 2 Testify

By HAROLD MARTIN JR.

Two former Marietta pinball machine operators testified Monday they paid two Marietta city councilmen more than $4,000 "to stay in business" over a period of about six months.

The testimony was the highlight of the first day of the Cobb Superior Court trial of Edward W. Chastain and Guy Powell on charges of bribery.

The two councilmen are being tried jointly on two of the 15 indictments pending against them. Chastain has one other felony bribery indictment and eight misdemeanor malpractice in office indictments pending. Powell has four misdemeanor malpractice in office charges against him.

As court adjourned for the day, John H. Black, who described himself as president of the Dixie Land Music Carp., had finished defending himself against a charge by defense attorney J. R. Cullen that there was no active firm known as the Dixie Land Music Co., but only a charter.

Black said the firm was formed by Luke Townsend, Charlie Batson, Jack Little, Howard Gentry and himself and that each had put up $1,600 to buy the pinball machines belonging to Eugene W. Holcomb, a former Marietta city councilman.

He said the firm hadn't "gotten around" to issuing stock or establishing a business office but that it had elected officers.

The five are presently under a joint indictment for bribery growing out of the same incident re-

High Court Stays Out of School Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court Monday refused to interfere with a state court decision barring a Vermont school district from paying tuition to students in Roman Catholic high schools.

The high tribunal did not issue an opinion in the case. It merely handed down a brief order refusing to hear an appeal from the ruling by the Vermont Supreme Court.

The state court held on Jan. 3 that the payments violated the First Amendment to the Constitution which calls for separation of church and state.

The case was instituted in Vermont by C. Raymond Swart who brought suit against the South Burlington School Board as a Protestant and a taxpayer. It was brought to the U.S. Supreme Court by five other taxpayers, including one non-Catholic.

The court's refusal to intervene left the Vermont decision stand-

Sun to Grin Down On 2 Days in 70s

Fair weather, not quite so warm Tuesday, and mild Wednesday is the prospect for Atlanta, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Temperatures are expected to range Tuesday from a low of 58 to a high of 76 and Wednesday from a low of 58 to a high of 78. Monday's range in Atlanta was a low of 62 and a high of 82.

The Weather Bureau said earlier forecasts of widely scattered showers had been pushed out of the picture by later readings. Hence, there is no chance of thundershowers either Tuesday or Wednesday.

1927 DRAMA REPEATED

A Foundling Too, Policeman Recalls

By KEELER McCARTNEY

One Atlanta policeman has a particular interest in discovering the identity of a baby girl who was abandoned Sunday in the hallway of an apartment house in southeast Atlanta.

Patrolman Jack Wallace was found under almost identical conditions 34 years ago and for more than two decades there has lurked at the back of his mind the question: "Who am I?"

Wallace, a policeman for the past 10 years and currently assigned as a motorcycle officer, has no quarrel to pick with his adopted family background.

"It's just you get to wondering sometimes who your people are," he said.

WARD OF COUNTY

The infant was admitted as a boarder to Grady Hospital and, policewoman Emily Thacker said, she would be remanded to custody of DeKalb juvenile authorities.

Wallace's personal mystery began the day after Christmas in 1926.

Newspapers hailed the Christmas season as one of Atlanta's most successful. Downtown stores reported record sales.

The Atlanta Constitution of Dec. 27, 1926, headlined stories of floods that killed 12 persons in the Tennessee-Arkansas-Mississippi section and a charge from Sen. Borah, then chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, that big business was causing unrest in Latin America.

A much smaller item noted that a maid on her rounds at Terminal Station found a 2-day-old baby boy in a shopping bag.

U.S. Panel Acts to Double Size of Disease Center

The Communicable Disease Center near Emory University would double its present size under a $12 million expansion allocation approved Monday by the House Appropriations Committee.

At the same time, the committee assailed the U.S. Public Health Service for building the present CDC, which was dedicated in September, "in line with sadly-out-of-date plans under the ill-fated lease-purchase scheme."

The $12 million allocation still must clear the Senate Appropriations Committee as well as the full House and Senate.

Additional laboratory space, enlargement of existing labs, a 500-seat auditorium and other facilities would be added to the CDC site on Clifton Road, NE, by use of the proposed $12 million.

The proposed funds also would be used to construct an animal production and holding facility "at a rural site convenient to the laboratory," said Dr. C. A. Smith, chief of the CDC here.

"In the rural facility we would raise laboratory animals—such as mice, rats, monkeys, hamsters, rabbits, ferrets, sheep—to be used in experiments on Clifton Road," Smith said.

Personnel at the CDC, which presently numbers about 750, would be increased to around 1,000, he said.

The House committee said the expansion would enable the PHS to consolidate programs which are now located in four separate cities and in many different buildings.

The original plans for the Atlanta CDC were drawn up 10 years ago, the committee said, and "there is considerable question that they were adequate for the organization that then existed."

The CDC here is only one example of "undue procrastination and delay" on the part of the PHS in completing construction projects, the committee said.

American Exchange Is Investigated by SEC

By RICHARD E. MOONEY
(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The Securities and Exchange Commission announced Monday that it will make an extensive private investigation of the American Stock Exchange.

The investigation arises from the recent disclosure that two specialist members of the exchange had engaged in multi-million-dollar manipulation of stocks from 1954 to early 1960. Philip A. Loomis Jr., director of the commission's division of trading and exchanges, said the investigation was being made "to see why it was possible for something like this to happen."

The commission said that it had directed its staff to examine two broad subjects—the exchange's "rules, policies, practices and procedures" on the regulation and conduct of members, and the part that members play in the distribution of registered securities on

The Big Money Problem

Kentucky Gives Its Budgets A Going-Over in Advance

By REG MURPHY
Constitution Political Editor

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Kentucky gentlemen love their fast horses and their $50 pari-mutuel machines, but when it comes to tax money, they want it played close to the vest.

That accounts directly for a system of close checking on the tax money which the state spends, and the system obviously pays.

Last article in a series. Related story on governor meeting with budget committee members, Page 17.

The system which Kentucky has developed frankly gives the governor most of the power over the state budget. "The Legislature never spends more than a week on the budget," said one veteran state official.

Nobody suggests, though, that the Legislature is being stampeded. Hustling the bill through becomes a relatively easy task after eight months of intensive work by department heads and fiscal officials. The governor's office simply provides the Legislature with answers to its questions.

This concentration of power in the governor's office once led to cries that Kentucky had made the governor a financial czar. (It's difficult to imagine cherubic former governor and onetime baseball commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler as a czar over anything, but he nevertheless was accused.)

The cries have died out now, and the state's Finance Commis-

Fire, Blasts Kill 22 in Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI) — A fire followed by a series of explosions gutted three buildings in the Kowloon district of Hong Kong Monday, killing 22 persons including two children and injuring 36 others.

The blaze started in a building believed to have housed industrial chemicals. A series of explosions followed and spread the flames to two other buildings.

$1.5 Million Fraud Laid to Brokerage

By CHARLES MOORE

A court-appointed receiver took over an Atlanta stock brokerage firm Monday after the Securities and Exchange Commission charged the firm swindled $1,500,000 from local customers.

Named in civil complaints filed in U.S. District Court here were Pruett & Co., Inc., of 1048 Northside Dr. NW, and its president-treasurer and executive vice president, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Pruett.

Federal Judge Frank A. Hooper named attorney Robert Hicks to run the brokerage firm, and also issued an injunction to halt alleged violations of the Securities and Exchange acts.

The Pruetts, while not admitting allegations of the complaint filed by the SEC, did not protest the injunction and the naming of a receiver.

They were not available for comment Monday.

SEC regional administrator William Green said the amount involved was $1,500,000, due some 38 Atlanta and Griffin customers of the firm.

Green said individual customers, who were mostly wealthy

U.S. Finds Locations Of Red Missile Sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military leaders believe they know the locations of 37 Soviet missile-launching pads, including one less than 500 miles from Alaska.

And they figure the Soviets have 35 to 50 long-range war rockets ready to shoot.

At least 10 of the reported missile pads have been identified as launch sites for the Soviet Union's 8,000-mile-range T3 missile, which carries a thermonuclear warhead.

Further, the United States has determined the location of 14 Soviet missile and rocket factories.

All of this information appears in the May issue of Military Review, a magazine published by the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

The magazine noted that the data have been compiled from unclassified sources and added, "Because of a tight Soviet control over military information, this data is derived from sources which are not necessarily accurate or complete."

In addition to estimating the Soviet Union has between 35 and 50 long range missiles ready to shoot, the Military Review figures it is capable of producing up to 200 strategic missiles by the winter of 1961-62.

At latest count, the United States had an estimated total of 59 ready-to-shoot missiles, including 32 of the submarine-launched Polaris rockets.

Further, said the magazine, "there is some evidence that the U.S.S.R. is prepared to fire strategic missiles from mobile launchers mounted on rail cars."

The rail-mounted missile is believed to be a boost-glide weapon, known as the T4A. This missile is boosted upward by a rocket engine then glides to its target like an aircraft. It carries a 3,100-pound payload. The range is not known but since it's regarded as a strategic weapon it presumably can travel 1,500 miles or more.

In spotting the launching pads, the magazine noted that all are within the Soviet Union with the exception of one at Seroc, 20 miles north of Warsaw, Poland.

Most of the launch pads appear to be situated west of the Ural Mountains, though there is a launch site at Anadyr in Siberia across the Bering Sea from Alaska.

There is, additionally, a concentration on the Siberian mainland just to the northwest of Japan and on Sakhalin Island, due north of Japan.

$12 Billion Arms Sails Past Senate

Russell Guides Kennedy's Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed Monday a $12.5 billion authorization bill for the nation's major military weapons system, including $525 million more than President Kennedy asked for manned bombers.

The huge measure was cleared by voice vote after less than an hour's debate. It was sent to the House, where the Armed Services Committee has approved a measure differing in a few respects.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., Armed Services Committee chairman and floor manager for the bill, told his colleagues the authorization bill follows the Kennedy administration's recommendations exactly except for one item, the extra $525 million.

Sen. Russell said "It is only fair to observe that in its major outline the current program for weapons procurement is a continuation of the major programs proposed by former President Eisenhower."

The extra $525 million in the bill is a demonstration of the Senate committee's view that missiles would not soon entirely replace manned planes in the country's major weapons arsenal.

West Point Honors Its Hero Ike

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower Monday returned to West Point where he graduated 46 years ago as a second lieutenant to receive hero's honors and a gold medal for "highest devotion" to his country.

For 30 minutes he stood at attention while the cadet corps of 2,300 marched in review.

A speech by Eisenhower and a founder's day dinner at which he was presented with the Gen. Sylvanus Thayer gold medal and scroll climaxed the reunion.

Thayer was the academy's fifth superintendent.

Reds Blast France on Atom Tests

GENEVA (UPI)—The Soviet Union told Britain and the United States Monday it might resume testing hydrogen bombs if the French government persists in its own tests.

Western delegates said they did not consider the statement an "ultimatum" and explained that the Russians did not even make it clear whether they would walk out of the Geneva talks on banning nuclear test explosions if France continued.

Chief Soviet negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin told Monday's 85-minute session:

"If the French continue testing nuclear weapons, agreement would become impossible on a nuclear test ban treaty. It may force the Soviet Union to resume testing of nuclear and hydrogen bombs.

Tsarapkin charged that the French were carrying out the tests for NATO countries, particularly the United States and Britain. He said this gave them a "unilateral advantage."

U.S. delegate Arthur H. Deon rejected Tsarapkin's charge and said France carried out its tests because the United States and Britain would not give France information on nuclear weapons.

Goldfine pleaded guilty to the charges. The judge told the couple he would pass sentence later. (Associated Press Wirephoto)

Red China Revolt Hinted to Johnson

By WILLIAM THEIS

HONG KONG (UPI)—Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has heard "respectable opinion" that Communist China is having such serious internal troubles that the Peiping regime might be overthrown in 12 to 18 months, authoritative sources said Monday.

According to the sources, Johnson was given the opinion that the Red Chinese army might revolt because of unrest and malnutrition as the result of crop failures and faulty management of the Red regime.

However, this view is not supported by official United States sources in Hong Kong, which borders on the Communist-held China mainland. These sources said that while there is no doubt Red China has suffered serious food shortages, there is no strong indication that collapse of the Communist government is imminent.

Sources said Johnson has been advised by some who know Red China well that they believe the Peiping regime is in no position to take decisive actions anywhere because of domestic troubles.

It also was learned that Johnson is prepared to advise those he is meeting on his tour of Asia that President Kennedy is not likely to agree to an early summit conference and that the administration feels this is a poor time for a meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Johnson arrived here from Formosa, midway point on his six-nation tour, for a day of rest and to catch up with his "very necessary" staff work. Sources in his party indicated that while the "respectable opinion" of Communist China's woes closely followed his visit to Nationalist China, it did not come from Johnson's talks with Taipei officials.

As during his visits to South Viet Nam and the Philippines, Johnson assured the Nationalist Chinese of United States determination to resist further Communist encroachments in Asia.

Bus Integrationists Fly On After Delay by 2 Bomb Calls

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Battered integrationists abandoned their bus trip through Alabama Monday night and—after two bomb scares—flew to New Orleans by plane.

The departure of the 17 members of the Congress of Racial Equality—nine white people and eight Negroes—ended two days of violence and race tension in Alabama.

They were forced to leave an Eastern Air Lines plane after the FBI said it had received a telephone call that a bomb had been concealed aboard the plane.

Eastern said later the flight was canceled, although no bomb was found.

A later call to a pubilc insurance booth in the airport waiting room told a woman clerk that a bomb had been concealed in the terminal, itself.

A man's voice told Miss Jean Taylor the bomb was set to go off within 18 minutes. However, there was no explosion.

The integrationists earlier had purchased tickets aboard a Capital Airlines plane, but were shunted back to an Eastern plane for the New Orleans flight when Capital reported the weather at Mobile would prohibit the plane leaving immediately.

Alabama's Gov. John Patterson announced that the state could not guarantee their safety and he urged them to leave Alabama as quickly as possible.

The "Freedom Riders," many of whom suffered severe beatings at Anniston, where a bus was burned, and Birmingham Sunday, were stymied when Greyhound bus drivers refused to drive them to Montgomery.

Plans originally included stops at Montgomery and either Mobile, Ala., or at Meridian, Miss.

Representatives of the group made frequent telephone calls to their New York offices and to Washington, where one of them talked with U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy.

The Rev. B. Elton Cox, 29, Negro minister of High Point, N.C., and a member of the CORE group, said the trip into Alabama was successful "because it proves that citizens of this country can't ride as citizens despite Supreme Court rulings on interstate passengers."

The integrationists had planned to leave Birmingham by bus at 2 p.m. Monday, but waited at the Greyhound station until about 5 p.m. when it became evident the Greyhound drivers weren't going to drive.

Patterson issued a statement in Montgomery which said:

"In view of the tenseness of the situation, it is impossible to guarantee the safety of the agitators. Our advice to them is to get out of Alabama as quickly as possible.

We will escort them to the nearest state line; however we will not escort them to any other cities in Alabama to continue their rabble-rousing."

The CORE group is on a Southwide swing that started in Washington 11 days ago. They were scheduled to reach New Orleans in time to attend a mass rally of integrationists Wednesday night.

Gary Cooper Going To Last Rest Today

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Final rites of the Roman Catholic faith began Monday night for actor Gary Cooper, 60, whose death from cancer brought tribute from the great and humble all over the world.

The star's widow, Rocky, and their daughter, Maria, 24, were in seclusion prior to the saying of the Rosary Monday night at Cunningham & O'Connor Mortuary.

Solemn requiem mass will be recited at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Church of the Good Shepherd, where Cooper received his first communion after his conversion to Catholicism in 1959. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery in Inglewood.

Cooper died Saturday after a four-month bout with cancer.

Six close friends, among them the most prominent in Hollywood, will serve as pallbearers. They include James Stewart, whose touching acceptance of Cooper's third Oscar on April 17, increased speculation that Cooper was more seriously ill than had originally been known.

Others will be comedian Jack Benny, directors Henry Hathaway and William Goetz, producer Jerry Wald and agent Charles K. Feldman.

One of the two Oscars won by Cooper for best acting was for "High Noon," in which he played a sheriff faced with the classic, inevitable showdown with the villain. He also won an Oscar for "Sergeant York" and nominations for other roles, including "Pride of the Yankees." He played the late Lou Gehrig in the latter—a role which found him playing the Yankee baseball star faced with incurable illness.

Informal Meeting Could Be Helpful

Possibility that President Kennedy may meet Soviet Premier Khrushchev for informal talks during his forthcoming trip to Europe produces a mixed reaction.

Remembering past performances and Khrushchev's insulting breakup of the last summit conference, one wonders what possible good could come from any further attempts to talk directly with the Russian premier. On the other hand, a person-to-person meeting could serve to clear the air of misconceptions which Khrushchev might have about the new American President and U.S. intentions.

President Kennedy took office with the announced intention of trying new diplomatic approaches to find some areas of agreement with Moscow. He has found some rude surprises with the Communists stepping up the cold war and rebuffing honest overtures.

In Laos, in Viet Nam, at the test-ban talks in Geneva and in Cuba the Soviets have demonstrated they have no intention of abandoning their drive against the free world through subversion and even military aggression. And Khrushchev has repeated his threat to create a new crisis in Berlin.

Hope for ending the cold war through negotiation, because of the very nature of Communist ideology and tactics, is a dim prospect. "Peaceful coexistence," under Khrushchev's definition, means leaving the Soviets alone to expand communism while we do nothing to prevent it.

This, of course, the United States and the West cannot do. If Khrushchev interprets failure of some of our recent policies as weaknesses, he could miscalculate dangerously. If President Kennedy could make this clear to him, an informal meeting would serve a good purpose.

Here's Chance to Help In Fighting a Crippler

Multiple sclerosis, the chronic, crippling disease of the central nervous system, has been called the greatest cause of chronic disability among young adults. Its cause is unknown and the struggle to discover it and a cure remain for the future.

The Greater Atlanta Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society reports there are about 500 victims of the disease in the Atlanta area. Through funds donated by the public, the chapter provides patient service, the giving of ambulatory aids such as wheel chairs, supports the Atlanta MS recreation center and the services of a social worker. The center, by the way, has served as a pattern for the nation.

Today thousands of volunteers will stage the annual Hope Chest march for multiple sclerosis victims and for the national research program to find the cause and cure for the disease. Give generously to the end that suffering is relieved and toward final conquest of this baffling malady.

Let Budget Committee Do a Thorough Study

Political editor Reg Murphy's series on budgeting and spending practices in North Carolina and Kenutucky point up the severe weaknesses in our own setup. These states, as have others, have had to undergo drastic revisions of procedures because of growth of government itself.

It was inevitable that sooner or later Georgia would have to face the same problems. With various federal grant-in-aid programs, the state is now spending more than a billion dollars every two years. It has been trying to do it with executive machinery geared to budgets of more than 30 years ago.

The proper way to improve this machinery is to profit from the experience of others. This the recently created budget study group is now undertaking. The Assembly at its last session fumed and made noises but it was obvious that a constructive job could not be done so hastily and in such an atmosphere. Taking away the governor's powers and placing them in the hands of a group of legislators offered no effective solution.

Everyone agrees there is a problem and that it should and can be corrected. The solution should be arrived at in an atmosphere as free of political jockeying as possible. Georgia taxpayers at least are due that much consideration.

All Georgians Grateful It Didn't Happen Here

If mobs existed independently of all other forces in a society it would be as senseless to criticize them as it is to criticize a herd of crazed wild animals. Mobs, like herds, don't think. But mobs, like herds, have instincts and their instincts are right as often as they are wrong.

The Alabama mobs that brutally assaulted fellow human beings, destroyed private property and brought upon that state, this region and this nation a shame and disgrace and harm that cannot be fully measured, acted on the instinct that they could so behave with impunity.

They appear to have been "right."

A share of the blame, then, must rest on the shoulders of the responsible officials of Anniston, Birmingham and Alabama.

This terror occurred without restraint, before or after the fact. We would do well to remember that. The mobs certainly won't forget it.

Two other features of what has happened ought to be mentioned. First, the lack of wisdom on the part of the biracial group whose action was the object of the mob's wrath is of no consequence. What they did was stupid. Americans still have the right to be peaceably stupid. American law enforcement officers have the duty to protect them when they are.

Second, this group passed through Georgia without incident. There are mobs in Georgia. Their instincts warned them that trespasses against the law would be punished here. They were right. For this all Georgians—and we mean all Georgians—can be eternally grateful.

America Must Honor Asian Commitments

Vice President Johnson's tour of Asia carries the importance of a battleship showing the flag.

Laos was not an American victory. Communist success there has badly shaken Asia from Thailand and South Viet Nam to the Philippines and Formosa.

By showing up to give firm assurance of American support to those places, the vice president has probably settled some fears of a U.S. pullout. He seems to be doing a good job of it.

The painful episode in Laos, inevitable for months, yielded just one benefit to the United States—time to put together defenses that will bar it from happening elsewhere in Asia. The Johnson visit is a first stop. The main job lies ahead.

And this is a job that must be done. American commitments in Asia are difficult. President Kennedy can liquidate them or fulfill them. We believe the American people will back him in fulfilling them, regardless of the cost, regardless of the peril.

After 9 Years Spillane Is Coming Back

One of the occupational hazards of editorial writing is that you see signs and symbols all about you. It is a minor mental ailment but an ailment just the same. (Its physical analogue is halitosis. Like halitosis it is noncrippling. Like halitosis its effect is worse on the friends of the afflicted than on the afflicted himself.)

I mention this as preface to the announcement that I have just seen a new symbol indicating that we are in for another frenzy akin to the McCarthy years. Mickey Spillane has a new book coming out next month, his first in nine years.

Spillane is the creator of the no-holds-barred, to-hell-with-the-law detective-sadist Mike Hammer.

His first books came out in the early 1950s. They sold millions of copies at a time when this country was enjoying what Eric Goldman called "Mike Hammerism in politics." Spillane quit writing shortly before Sen. Joe McCarthy was forced to quit his bullying. Now Spillane is coming back.

This is not, of course, a literary criticism of the new book or the old ones. There are two reasons for that. (1) I am not a literary critic. (2) Spillane's books are not literature. (You have only to look at the book jacket to know. The author poses unshaven, tie loosened, a hat on the back of his head, a sneer on his lips and a .45-caliber automatic pistol in his hand. His literary and philosophical debt is to the James boys. Not William and Henry. Jesse and Frank.)

Spillane alone is an inadequate symbol. But coming when the Birch Society is growing, when the Supreme Court majority believes freedom of speech is a relative thing, when the attorney general of the nation is a man who made his reputation as a "fifth amendment" prosecutor (is the "old" Robert Kennedy dead or only sleeping?), when the House Un-American Activities Committee is supreme and when a few insecure and irresponsible Southern politicians are beginning to substitute Reds for blacks as whipping boys, the symbol fills out and takes meaning.

If the McCarthy hysteria must come back, we can take heart in only one small way. Something has to leave before it can come back. These things don't last.—TED LIPPMAN.

The Infantry Has Personal Moments

Atlanta Rotarians were served lunch Monday on blue and white paper place mats that bore a picture. The picture showed a blue expanse of ocean water blooming with whitecaps. That was all, just water. And the caption of the picture said:

"Polaris Submarine on Patrol."

This Navy ploy must have galled the Army men present. You could imagine what they muttered into their salads—as they studied it. "Bet there's no sub under there. Bet that's just water."

But that's what the Soviets wonder, too, which is why the Polaris submarine is such a fine weapon.

Still, the good old Army had to put up with this Navy tactic on the heels of the glamorous Air Force announcement about space. The Air Force said it is setting up an astronaut training program. The Army men are up to their conventional armpits in these gee-whiz press releases from the rival services.

The doughfeet are doing more than pack sand, however. From the mountains near Dahlonega comes the story by Constitution Reporter Frank Wells on the Ranger training base there.

Selected infantrymen, screened by psychiatrists, are getting shock troop training of a specialized sort. They climb, shoot, drill and train in ways that qualify them to be combat commandos.

Their Ranger history goes back to Rogers' Rangers in the French and Indian War. Their standing order, as Maj. Rogers stated it, is "Don't forget nothing."

World War II found Ranger battalions operating at the thickest points. Remember Pointe du Hoe, the towering cliff overlooking Omaha Beach? When the infantry hit the beach, the Rangers struck the cliff—raising London fire ladders and firing grappling hooks over the ledge, then going up hand over hand.

The idea of the Georgia mountain training now is to qualify Rangers throughout the rifle ranks—one officer per company and one noncom per platoon. The idea has glamor and it has soundness. Men under fire will go with a leader. But the leader becomes the key.

One wonders what a few Ranger-trained men could have done with the pinned-down exiles at Cuba's Bay of Pigs—or the dispirited loyal Laotion troops in the face of the Communist attacks. Men who will go in under fire prove their bravery by going. But only the most aggressive leader, sharply trained and determined, can move them in ways that justify their courage.

And for all the sub crews and astronauts, gallant as they are, no more personal moment comes to a man than the time when a leader of riflemen must give the call of the Queen of Battles—the infantry—"Follow Me." Cheer up, Army. You're doing all right.

High-Level Trips Become a Fixture

PARIS — Prior to his inauguration it was President Kennedy's evident intention that neither he nor his secretary of state should travel from Washington more than a minimal amount of time. Yet the President himself will visit both Ottawa and Paris this month and Rusk, in less than four months of office, has flown to Bangkok, Ankara, Oslo and Geneva.

The fact of the matter is that the world of jet aircraft has simply become too small and statesmen, no matter what they prefer, can no longer remain at home. Our administration is making ample use of special envoys such as Vice President Johnson, Dean Acheson and Ambassador Harriman. Nevertheless, it finds its principal policymakers doomed to continual motion by evolving diplomatic methods.

This trend, begun during war and postwar conferences, was accelerated over the past decade. John Foster Dulles set the pace of the United States. President Eisenhower journeyed far and, had events in the Soviet Union and Japan not supervened, his itinerary would have been lengthened.

The real impetus for high-level travel came from the Soviet Union. Stalin detested journeys and never got further than Potsdam. However, when Khrushchev assumed control, first with Bulganin and then alone, he developed the abilities of a vigorous traveling salesman.

Diplomatic wanderlust has become a permanent feature of modern political life because of the jet airplane and the steady movement toward centralization of power in nations of widely differing ideologies. Power has become more centralized because complex problems require a stronger executive capable of swift decisions in the realm of foreign policy.

This has always been true in autocratic Russia. It is patently true in France. The tendency seems perceptible in the United States, whether one speaks of the Eisenhower-Dulles period or the age of the New Frontier. And it is to be detected in such countries as England and Italy, where the role of the executive expands and that of parliament diminishes.

The brilliant French analyst, Bertrand de Jouvenel, calls this a return to the "monarchization" of government. Crowned sovereigns, Queen Elizabeth, for example, still make propaganda tours. But the real rulers, prime ministers and presidents, again handle state business like old-fashioned emperors and czars. The jet merely facilitates reversion to past techniques.

Ever since he moved into the White House, Kennedy has been beseiged by "monarchic" visitors and his own trip to France falls in this realm. For, indeed, it is designed as more than a simple journey of goodwill. Should it prove successful, it will pave the way for settling major problems perplexing our relationships with France and the allied world.

There is a strange and persistent rise in the titular grade of negotiators. Before the war most American envoys were mere ministers and our missions were heavily larded with third secretaries. Nowadays, with ambassadors a commonplace, ministers and third secretaries are becoming as scarce as whooping cranes.

New York Times

Film Proves Committee Ought to Be Abolished

The film entitled "Operation Abolition" is an official production of the House Un-American Activities Committee dealing with the demonstrations against it during hearings in San Francisco last May. It gives a misleading impression that the demonstrators were organized and directed by Communists as part of a campaign to abolish the committee—with the implication that all who oppose the commitee are Communist-inspired.

Defense department purchases of prints for its libraries, and a great increase of its sales and public showings, make essential a full understanding of the film's accuracy and origin.

The pictures in the film feature almost exclusively the disorders that occurred. They give special prominence to the inexcusable disruptions at the hearing by a few Communists and others charged by the committee with being such. The fact is, however, that the demonstrators were almost entirely students who were peacefully, though noisily, protesting what they believed to have been the committee's unfair and unconstitutional conduct and its refusal to admit them to the hearing room packed with friends of the committee.

The only violence shown in the film is that of the police in ejecting many of the protesters from the City Hall. But every one of the 64 who were arrested by the police has since been found innocent of wrongdoing by the courts.

Neither the picture nor the commentary gives any firm evidence of Communist direction or control of the bulk of demonstrators, as is charged by members of the committee who appear on the film.

Not only is the film itself reprehensible, but so also is the way it was made and is distributed. It is composed of cuttings—chosen without regard to sequence—from pictures made by the broadcasting companies and subpoenaed by the committee. These were turned over to a commercial company to make the film. More than 700 prints have since been sold by the company at $100 each. This whole un-American operation by the Un-American Activities Committee is evidence not of the need of its continuance but need of its abolition—a course we have urged before.

Georgian Raps Sen. Talmadge for Vote Against President's Minimum Wage Bill

Dalton—An open letter to the Hon. Herman Talmadge: The State Chamber of Commerce (is) indeed small in comparison to the masses of good solid down to earth working people who you are supposed to also represent. . . . You and your colleagues can no longer afford to cope, as you did in the past, with an uninformed public. They have reached a maturity which cannot be circumvented.

Your negative vote on President Kennedy's minimum wage bill and its extended coverage, together with other measures connected with the "New Frontier," produced another obstacle of opposition in our fight against the insidious Communist philosophy. Your excuses for such negation do not hold up under an enlightened public.

I remember in 1938 when the Fair Labor Standards Acts was passed, how Georgia industry; and especially the turpentine industry, fought tooth and nail to prohibit the 25 cents an hour minimum wage bill from being enacted into law. Their business would be ruined, but everyone with a degree of intelligence knew better.

Instead they thrived, flourished and expanded their business on the increased demands for their products which the added purchasing power made possible. In a time like the present when we are in a death struggle with the U.S.S.R., and we are competing with them in all phases of our everyday life, and especially in the field of a vigorous economic growth, it little behooves you and a few of your colleagues who still live in the past, and should have been born a hundred years ago, to vote against these measures which make America strong.

Castro Announcement 'May Be a Blessing'

Atlanta — Castro's announcement on May Day that he has turned Cuba into a Communist oriented country with economic as well as military ties with the Soviet bloc might be a blessing in disguise in that it may finally reveal Fidel's demagogic, ruthless and repressive regime to the eyes of the politically naive leaders of Latin America.

Castro would be less belligerent and defying if the countries of the Western Hemisphere would line up behind Uncle Sam in using economic, diplomatic and propaganda weapons in subduing the Cuban dictator.

Kennedy Warned On Voting Fraud

Tifton—While young Bob Kennedy was insulting Georgia at Athens, he had a junket going on down in Telfair looking into "alleged" voting irregularities.

Your being a friend of the court, pass the word along to young Bob not to get too zealous along that line, for somebody might decide to reopen the Texas and Chicago cases, and young John might lose his lease on Pennsy avenue.

DeKalb Resident Urges Dog Control

Decatur—Your editorial of May 5 entitled "DeKalb Should Adopt Dog Control Proposal" was most welcome.

My neighborhood has packs of dogs that roam freely. These dogs seem friendly, they've done no damage, and I like dogs; but I'm afraid that one of the little children will be bitten if these dogs continue to roam freely.

I for one believe in a reasonable amount of control.

Mother Nature Needs a Hand

Nature's scenery and signs change as one goes across country. But some things look the same, from Atlanta to the higher altitudes in the West. Wash on the line looks alike wherever you go except perhaps for red flannels hung out to dry in Utah. And the drying doesn't take long in that aridity. Subdivisions, service stations, supermarkets, shopping centers — there is little difference. One could go to sleep in a bus in Memphis and wake up on the same bus in Denver and hardly know he were out of the Memphis suburbs unless an identifying sign said so.

Always the same classifieds — dog and parakeets lost — dear, dear pets, a good reward; babysitting by the day or by the hour; nursing homes, rest homes for the aged.

Always in the lobbies of the hotels in the smaller cities the elderly, apparently lonely men and women who seem to live by mealtime and television.

BLIGHT: Everywhere, too, there are the horrible automobile graveyards, final resting place for once fine cars. They are cannibalized now of working parts until only the rusty, twisted carcasses are left.

There ought to be a law—that the auto wrecking firms close in those lots, not with an unsightly board fence, but with a landscaped screening which preserves the natural scene as nearly as possible.

If we the people don't save nature, then no one will.

Selfishness alone will strip her down to the last shrub and lone remaining cool sequestered vale.

By the way, the "Save Our Scenery" committee in Iowa sought to influence toward legislation reasonably regulating billboards, by sending the committee on highways two dozen red roses. Lobbying by any other name could smell no sweeter.

By the way, some state—I believe it is Iowa — requires a death certificate for cars sent to an auto graveyard. That is, the wrecker must surrender to the state the certificate of title. Thus, the title may never be re-issued in the name of another car.

PROUD TITLE: Speaking of titles, the young man had been named "Monitor of the Week" for the third grade. The morning he came late, the teacher couldn't wait so she appointed a substitute.

When the regular monitor showed up, he was somewhat put out.

"I thought I was the monster this week," he said indignantly.

Barry Goldwater

We Must Decide To Take the Risk

In recent months a number of observers of American foreign policy have suggested that, "the only thing that can save the United States is a non-fatal defeat." No one can argue that the United States suffered a tremendous defeat as a result of the poorly planned, poorly implemented attempt to overthrow Castro in Cuba. It remains to be seen whether or not we will profit from this experience.

For some months now I have been suggesting that we must abandon our present strategy of merely trying not to lose the Cold War and resolutely determine to achieve total victory.

A recently published book sponsored by the Foreign Policy Research Institute of the University of Pennsylvania clearly states the necessary ingredients for a successful attitude toward Communist aggression.

The authors say this: "The requirements of foreign policy are to assert authority, to enhance prestige, to stand firm, to face down threats, to take risks, to stand by one's allies, to punish one's enemies and whenever pursuing these tasks calls for force, the use of force."

Kennedy was caustically critical of the Eisenhower administration for its failure to successfully halt Communist aggression.

Actually, we have only two alternatives. One is to stand firm and take risks; the other, to back down and surrender each time we are challenged by the Communists.

No right - minded American wants to see this country engaged in a full-scale war, but when our enemy is determined and committed to world domination, when each month brings a new crisis and a new expansion of the Communist empire, it becomes obvious that unless we are ready to stand firm and to take the risk of war, we have no alternative but ultimate surrender.

Consider the Cuban situation. President Kennedy declared days in advance of the landings: "There will not be under any conditions an intervention in Cuba by United States armed forces."

The inner circles in Washington gave Adlai Stevenson credit for convincing the President it was expedient to publish this disclaimer. Whatever the source, it is obvious that once the statement was made the Cuban adventure was doomed to failure.

President Eisenhower was always fond of saying that everyone has 20-20 hindsight. Little can be gained of any real benefit now by arguing the merits of our decision to support the Cuban patriot insurrection. But it seems obvious that once a decision to support that attempt had been made the total strength of the United States should have been committed to victory.

"We intend to profit from this lesson," President Kennedy has said. Let us hope and pray we have learned that defeat is never a substitute for victory. When the safety of the republic hangs in the balance, we must have the courage to use force if necessary to achieve victory.

It Wasn't Good but It Wasn't Bad—and Only 416 Calories

Neither Russian spaceman Yuri Gagarin nor American astronaut Alan Shepard took time for lunch on their fast flights but had they needed nourishment an Atlanta firm had the food for them. As early as 1956 National Research and Development Corporation has been getting down to earth about men up in the air. Research scientists found it evident that no food products were perfect for pad-to-pickup production. The Atlanta development corporation decided that it would come up with a space food.

It did. But more than that NRDC, figuring that there were yet a lot of folks left back on the ground, compressed four years of research into a diet bar of 416 calories.

The hint to me is that if you munch this cake-like solid, fat will fall away and even slovenly 250-pounders will slim down enough to ride rockets.

I do not want to ride rockets.

But I wouldn't mind slimming down enough to comfortably get under the wheel of an auto, behind the handle of a lawn mower, or into last year's summer suits.

Anyway, it was the publisher of the paper, Ralph McGill, who was shoving the stuff at me, saying, "Have a bite." I had one. A small one. "That's not a bite," he said, still chewing on the piece he had tried, "Take a bigger one."

Let it be recorded in my behalf that not even the threat of torture, much less being fired, would have made me take more before fully finishing the first fling.

It wasn't good, but it wasn't bad.

According to the chart, the intake on my bite was 104 calories.

Three diet bars per day, taken in place of normal meals, will provide 1,248 calories of food—low enough for natural weight reduction, but high enough to maintain adequate nutrition to maintain life.

I didn't know if I wanted to live, thinking of eating nothing but diet food.

But then I again thought of all that work which had gone into this. I had eaten worse; K-rations for instance, the original reducing ration. Then I thought of the cream cheese salads, the saltless chops, and egg after egg after egg.

Best diet I've ever been on was the one where I didn't eat anything. After a day or so, you really don't care. If it wasn't for falling flat, a man could lose 20 pounds in a week.

But I said if a fellow such as Charles T. Harrell, executive vice president, believes so strongly in NRDC's solid bar there must be something to it.

"It will make quick inroads because it is ready to consume, requiring no mixing or can opener." There is room for a ready-mix. More than $200 million a year is spent on the dietry food market. Harrell expects to sell six million bars of Taper each month.

So I'm on it now. But if I waste away to nothing, there is no real worry. A 500-calorie bar is on the market by the same company for persons wishing to gain weight.

Farm Peril Cited at Jekyll

Constitution State News Service

JEKYLL ISLAND—Delay in closing the gap between the nation's capacity to produce abundance and the nation's ability to manage and use that abundance could mean economic disaster, Assistant U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John P. Duncan Jr. said here Monday.

Duncan, who was president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation before taking the Washington post, told a convention of 200 officers of the Georgia Production Credit Associations, "We are fast approaching the 'point of no return' in agriculture problems."

"Agricultural abundance must be adjusted to current domestic and foreign needs and demands through two approaches: adjusting consumption and adjusting production," Duncan said.

Duncan said the Kennedy administration has taken steps to increase consumption, and the 1961 Agricultural Act would provide the method of adjusting production.

All the farmer is asking for, Duncan said, is equality of economic opportunity.

"With the cooperation of American farmers, we can achieve an effective adjustment of our agricultural abundance, and close the gap between our tremendous productive potential and our ability to manage and utilize it in the best interest of all," he concluded.

R. B. Tootell, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, predicted a further "phenomenal increase" in the capital needs of farmers, and said the cooperative farm credit system will provide more and more of it.

"Credit will account for an increasingly high percentage of this increasing investment because the typical farm business today does not generate capital rapidly enough to finance the adjustments necessitated by the innovations and modern technology and changing market conditions," Tootell said.

"And as farmers require even larger capital investment and larger cash expenditures, it takes better informed lenders to do a constructive job of financing farmers," he added.

Broken Windows Got Him Mad—Real Mad

BELLEVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Barney Lee, 39, became enraged when he discovered someone had broken the windows of his car at crowded lower Huron Metropolitan Park Sunday, police said, and:

Fired a 16-gauge shotgun into the air twice, panicking picnickers and bathers; then drove his car into five other autos in the parking area, causing $1,500 damages.

Lee and two companions were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

Doctor of Religious Law Was As Wrong as a Man Could Be

What a predicament to be found in: a situation where one is fighting against God. Yet such is exactly the case when individuals resist the works and Words of God. A warning against such action came from Gamaliel, a first century doctor of the law before whom some early Christians were brought. Those nameless, bold folk were willing to risk their public standing in order to make known the message about their Galilean Savior.

One of their number, Peter, had been arrested and thrown in prison. Then there was quite a stir. When the upheavel wouldn't subside, the noisy accusers consulted Gamaliel, a respected interpreter of the law.

There Gamaliel sat — that authority, revered, and respected by masses of people. From his seat of detached professionalism he told the accusers how another rabble-rouser had come to town sometime previously named Theudas, and a pumber of people had followed him, only to come to nothing. Then a certain Judas of Galilee claimed to have been some sort of Messiah and got a big following. He, too, resulted in nothing of any consequence.

Then in effect, Gamaliel said, "Now, don't you know that this Jesus is just another such imposter? Give Him time, and He will come to nothing. The ridiculous claims and the fantastic predictions that He has made are bound to be the talk of a cranky fanatic. Just give Him time and He will fade away like all the other pretenders."

How wrong can a person be? Especially a doctor of religious law who should have known better? Come to nothing? If hundreds of millions of devout people who have followed Christ, if the accumulation of sculpture, architecture, art, music, philanthropy, charitable institutions, if all these which stem directly from this one "rabble-rouser" Jesus Christ is nothing, then Gamaliel needs to go back to school and learn all over again.

Other cynical men have predicted that Christianity would come to nothing. Voltaire contended that he would see the end of the church in his lifetime. When William Tyndale was burned at the stake for translating the Bible into English in order that common people could read it, the "Gamaliels" of that day said they were burning, not only the man, but also the "ridiculous" idea of religious freedom. What ill-prophets they turned out to be! From the very ashes of that dying martyr arose new inspiration.

Others like Tyndale set in motion a muscular determination which not only saw the Bible translation completed, but broke the chains that had bound masses of people in a kind of religious and ecclesiastical slavery. Then, with their chains off they stood up, straight and tall. Free men — free to think, to interpret and to choose as God gave them guidance.

Language of Flowers May Be Able To Stop Conversations

The way the homemaking experts keep urging "conversation pieces" on us you'd think the cat had got the tongue of the whole human race. Who needs a doodad on the mantel to start his friends talking? The state of my housekeeping is enough to set visitors' tongues wagging, without my having to resort to a hunk of driftwood or hair flowers under glass. What we really need in today's society is fewer things to start conversations and more to stop them. I believe an enterprising decorator could make a fortune if he would come up with something that would render host, hostess and company temporarily mute. Think what it would do for cocktail parties—the sweet, deep, restful silence.

Until somebody snaps up my idea and starts peddling unconversation pieces I'm working on a little sideline that should curtail the clatter in some areas. I'm studying the language of flowers.

Did you know that back in the reign of Charles XII everybody in England took up the Eastern custom of communicating by flowers? The original idea of saying it with flowers may have been to make things easy for shy lovers. A poor inarticulate slob of a boy could cut a swath among the belles of that day, if he knew his posies. For instance, one red rose said, "I love you." Better still, the cheap and plentiful jonquil begged the lady to "have pity on my passion."

If she threw him over or he simply wanted to make his getaway as graceful as possible he could send her a sprig of spruce fir, a leaf of sweet basil and a forget-me-not. This meant: "Farewell. Give me good wishes. Forget-me-not." Elvis Presley couldn't word it nicer.

A proposal of marriage was a little complicated unless you had a greenhouse. To say "Let the bonds of marriage unite us" you had to have blue convolvulus (for bonds), ivy (marriage) and whole straw flowers (unite us). A cheap way of expressing a really classy sentiment was to send a lady a straw. This meant: "Suffer me to be your slave."

Even if you aren't in a courting mood you can still use the language of flowers. A bunch of thrift means "Be assured of my sympathy." A red poppy offers consolation. If you want to dispatch such a warning as, "Beware of deceit, danger is near. Depart," gather up some oleander, white flytrap, rhododendron and sweetpea. (On second thought, maybe you'd better use the telephone or telegraph for this.)

A hunk of arbor vitae, to be had in nearly any park, means "Unchanging friendship. Live for me." A bay leaf says, "I change but in death." Dead leaves express sadness, a head of lettuce cold-heartedness, wild ranunculus ingratitude and meadow saffron says, "My happy days are past."

Speaking your piece with roses is pretty tricky. There are so many different kinds, signifying so many different things, ranging from "I am worthy of you" (white rose) to "I'm getting tired and/or jealous of you" (yellow rose). Personally, I like the simple, direct, functional snapdragon which says, "No."

I admit the language of flowers might confuse your friends at first but doesn't conversation?

"Alcohol is a stimulant to some and a sedative to others. Also, some can absorb more than others without noticeable effects."—Health column quote.

It's fine to help your fellow man . . . And in a lot of cases . . . You can assist him in some plan . . . Or problem that he faces . . . But if you want to help a "drunk" . . . We have some few suggestions . . . "Leave him, or you will both be sunk" . . . Now, are there further questions?

If not, let us proceed to say . . . Your help will be resented . . . Although he's helpless, in his way . . . He's perfectly contented . . . He has no worries and no fears . . . The world is gay and sunny . . . Then, suddenly, he bursts in tears . . . And says you stole his money . . . And having nothing more to spend . . . He'll take his watch and "hock" it . . . And though you are his bosom friend . . . He swears you picked his pocket.

You call a cab, you pay the fare . . . And ask the man to take him . . . To his address; but when he's there . . . Nobody can awake him . . . And then they haul him off to jail . . . What happens then? He phones you . . . Demanding that you come and bail . . . Him out, as if he owns you.

Exposure to Sun Should Be Gradual, Be Extra Careful at Beach

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Once they get used to the sunshine I let my children run around in just shorts. My husband says an hour a day is enough for the sun to shine on their bare skin, and that too much sunshine is harmful. I grant that, but we have only about three months in which they can run around so scantily clad.—H. B.

Gradual exposure and tanning prevent the harm that comes with excessive exposure and burning of the skin. See that your youngsters don't get a bad sunburn in the beginning. This is usually easy enough to guard against.

I see no reason other than to limit the amount of exposure to this sun. Remember this—and perhaps your husband will see the logic of it, too: The average youngster, running around in shorts, is in and out of the house, he's in the sun and then in the shade, he's climbing fences, playing tag, sitting under a tree.

He may be getting quite a bit of sun on his shoulders, but he's in so many positions, lying down, turning somersaults, squatting down shooting marbles and hanging by his knees from a tree limb, that he spreads the exposure all over him. That's good.

Kids, unlike adults, have sense enough to get in the shade when the noonday sun feels too hot.

And lastly, the really bad burns usually are suffered by people who, unsunned, go to a beach on a hot summer Sunday and cook themselves. There's no shade; there's tremendous reflection of ultraviolet rays from sand and water. They really burn. But in average neighborhoods the trees, grass, sidewalks, etc., absorb rather than reflect, ultra-violet.

An hour on a sun-drenched beach is the equivalent of all day in most other localities.

What do you think about operating on an 18-year-old young man to correct a pigeon breast? He is unhappy with his appearance and would like something done.—M. M.

This condition can be helped by surgery. I would think the deformity should be quite severe before undertaking this operation, but in suitable cases there is no reason to fear it. Quite the reverse. The decision should be made on the basis of the individual case and what benefits can be expected. Your doctor can guide you on this, perhaps with the added counsel of a specialist.

History Is Human

Ellis Ruled With Rare Tact

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

Mad dogs and Englishmen, according to the ditty, "go out in the noonday sun."

One Britisher who did just that in Savannah frequently between 1757 and 1760 attracted glances for more than one reason.

Henry Ellis, scientific-minded royal governor of the Province of Georgia, who frequently complained that "Savannah was the hottest place on earth," walked the sandy streets of the colony capital at midday with a thermometer dangling by a thread from his raised umbrella.

Eccentric?

Perhaps just a little—but the stroller one historian termed an "odd and rather wonderful Englishman" was simply indulging his curiosity in natural phenomena and his desire for exact data.

And there was nothing eccentric about the way Henry Ellis governed the tiny, remote outpost of the British Empire, surrounded by Indians and threatened by premature decay.

A POLITICIAN

The wealthy bachelor, explorer, and Fellow of the Royal Society who took over the post from John Reynolds was "a better politician than scientist," Dr. W. W. Abbott comments, "although to both pursuits he brought pace and style."

Henry Ellis needed the rare tact he exhibited from the day he arrived in Savannah to rousing cheers and a schoolboy parade Feb. 12, 1757.

Reynolds, a British Navy captain, had "steered a crooked course between stupidity and corruption" during his unpopular regime. The captain succeeded in offending neighboring Indian chiefs, alienating most of the leading men of the Georgia colony, and feuding with the governor of South Carolina.

Recalled to London, Reynolds left a political henchman, Speaker of the House William Little, determined to destroy the new governor through a hostile Assembly.

But wily Gov. Ellis played a shrewd waiting game. And he began mending political fences even before he sailed past the crude lighthouse on Tybee Island into the river approaching the desolate little town of Savannah, perched on its sandy bluff.

BIG YEAR

The three years that followed were momentous ones for Georgia.

Ellis always insisted these years—and the stifling heat of Savannah which he kept measuring with his umbrella thermometer — ruined his health permanently. But they helped restore a bloom to the struggling colony.

And Gov. Ellis had some curious new adventures to add to a singularly peripatetic career.

Before he was 35, Henry Ellis had seen much of the world. His complaints about Savannah's humidity seem strange because his years there followed three voyages to equatorial Africa and three to the West Indies.

The son of Francis Ellis of County Monaghan and Joan Maxwell, born in 1721, Ellis reportedly ran away to sea as a young man. He led the life of a sailor for years, with his whereabouts unknown to his family. Eventually, however, he returned home and inherited an estate which made him a wealthy man.

His most famous voyage was to the polar regions. He was a patron of—and a passenger on—an expedition which attempted unsuccessfully to find a northwest passage to Asia.

The book he wrote about that trip, "Voyage to Hudson's Bay for Discovering a Northwest Passage," was published in four languages and resulted in his Royal Society fellowship.

"Ellis takes note of everything," Dr. Abbott comments on the book, "wind, waves, current, ice, stars and planets, temperature—always the temperature—and of the birds and beasts as well as of fish. And he speculates about everything he sees. His deductions and conclusions are always logical, plausible, stimulating, and delivered with clarity and pungency. Unfortunately they are nearly always mistaken . . ."

But there were few mistakes in Georgia.

Gov. Ellis soothed political opponents, healed the wounds Reynolds had made. One of his first acts was to adjourn the warring legislature for a period which, he wrote London officials, will give time for men's passions to subside and for the truth to appear through the cloud of party prejudice that at present obsecure it."

The Englishman had stopped over in Charleston and established a warm relationship with South Carolina Gov. William Lyttleton.

He foresightedly brought presents for the Indians.

Nowhere is Ellis' strategy more clearly shown than in a conference he staged with Upper and Lower Creeks in Savannah Oct. 25, 1757.

Greatest immediate danger to the infant colony was these Indians, who surrounded the pioneers and who could muster 8,000 warriors.

MASTERFUL PERFORMANCE

Ellis put on a masterful show, once he had persuaded the Greeks to come to Savannah. (The chiefs were reluctant, for they had bitter memories of humiliations they had suffered in an earlier meeting there with the departed blundered John Reynolds.)

The stagecraft contrived Gov. Ellis by included an escort of Rangers for the visitors, military parades and seven-gun salutes, and a dinner at which the head men of 21 towns were honored.

The governor read a letter from King George "to his beloved children of the Creek Nation." And for a stiff Englishman Ellis made some emotional speeches in language the Indians liked best.

"My friends and brothers, behold my hands and my arms," he declaimed at the beginning. "Our common enemies, the French, have told you they are red to the elbows.

"View them. Do they speak the truth? Let you own eyes witness. You see they are white, and could you see my heart you would find it as pure, but very warm and true to you, my friends.

"The French tells you whoever shakes my hand will immediately be stricken by disease and die. If you believe this lying, foolish talk, don't touch me. If you do not, I am ready to embrace you."

SEAL PLEDGE

The captivated Red Men "embraced" the governor—and the next month approved a treaty by which friendly relations between the Province of Georgia and the Creek confederacy were firmly pledged.

In his short term Ellis accomplished other good things. He spent some of his own funds in combatting Georgia's main problems — inadequate defenses, insufficient wealth, and too few settlers.

By delicate scheming and master diplomacy he settled differences between the Crown and the Georgia Assembly. He brought in "Virginia Blues" and outfitted an armed vessel to protect the colony against French and Spanish attacks along the coast.

Ellis kept up a ceremonious correspondence with the Spanish governor of Florida—but assidiously encouraged the Creeks' aversion to the Spaniards. He maintained such a fine balance between the quarreling Creeks and Cherokees that Georgia was never attacked while he was in office, even when the neighboring South Carolina frontier was laid waste by the Cherokees.

Soon the Georgia governor had all parts of the colony government working together in unprecedented harmony. Production and trade doubled during his regime, and population increased steadily for the first time.

But by the fall of 1759 Ellis was discouraged — perhaps a little bored. He mourned that Savannah's climate left him "very little enjoyment of life."

SETS SAIL

At his own request the ailing governor set sail from Georgia in early November, 1760, leaving behind James Wright in his post.

Thereafter Henry Ellis lived the life of a rather pampered and still journeying invalid. Appointed governor of Novia Scotia, he sent a deputy to do all the work. Ellis himself spent summer months in London and wintered in Italy or the south of France for his health.

A famous host, he was known for his elegance, his delightful conversation, and the "variety of delicacies" his table afforded. One guest reported that as an old gentleman Ellis liked special brews of imported teas and also drank "pure water mixed with . . . the richest, most costly, and cordial wines."

Marooned in Italy by the French Revolution, the one-time royal governor of Georgia died in Naples Jan. 21, 1806. To the last he was an interested observor of Bonaparte's Italian campaigns—and Ellis might well have been remembering some of his own old strategies in "the hottest place on earth."

House Approves Dooley Medal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Monday approved a measure to authorize a special gold medal honoring the late Dr. Thomas Dooley, the young American doctor who worked for seven years to provide medical care in Laos and other Southeast Asian nations.

Dooley, a native of St. Louis, died of cancer in January. A former Navy doctor, the 34-year-old physician founded MEDICO, an organization which supplied hospital facilities to underprivileged natives in Laos, Viet Nam, Malaya, Cambodia and elsewhere.

The resolution, which goes to the Senate, would authorize the Treasury to spend up to $2,500 for the design of a special medal.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity

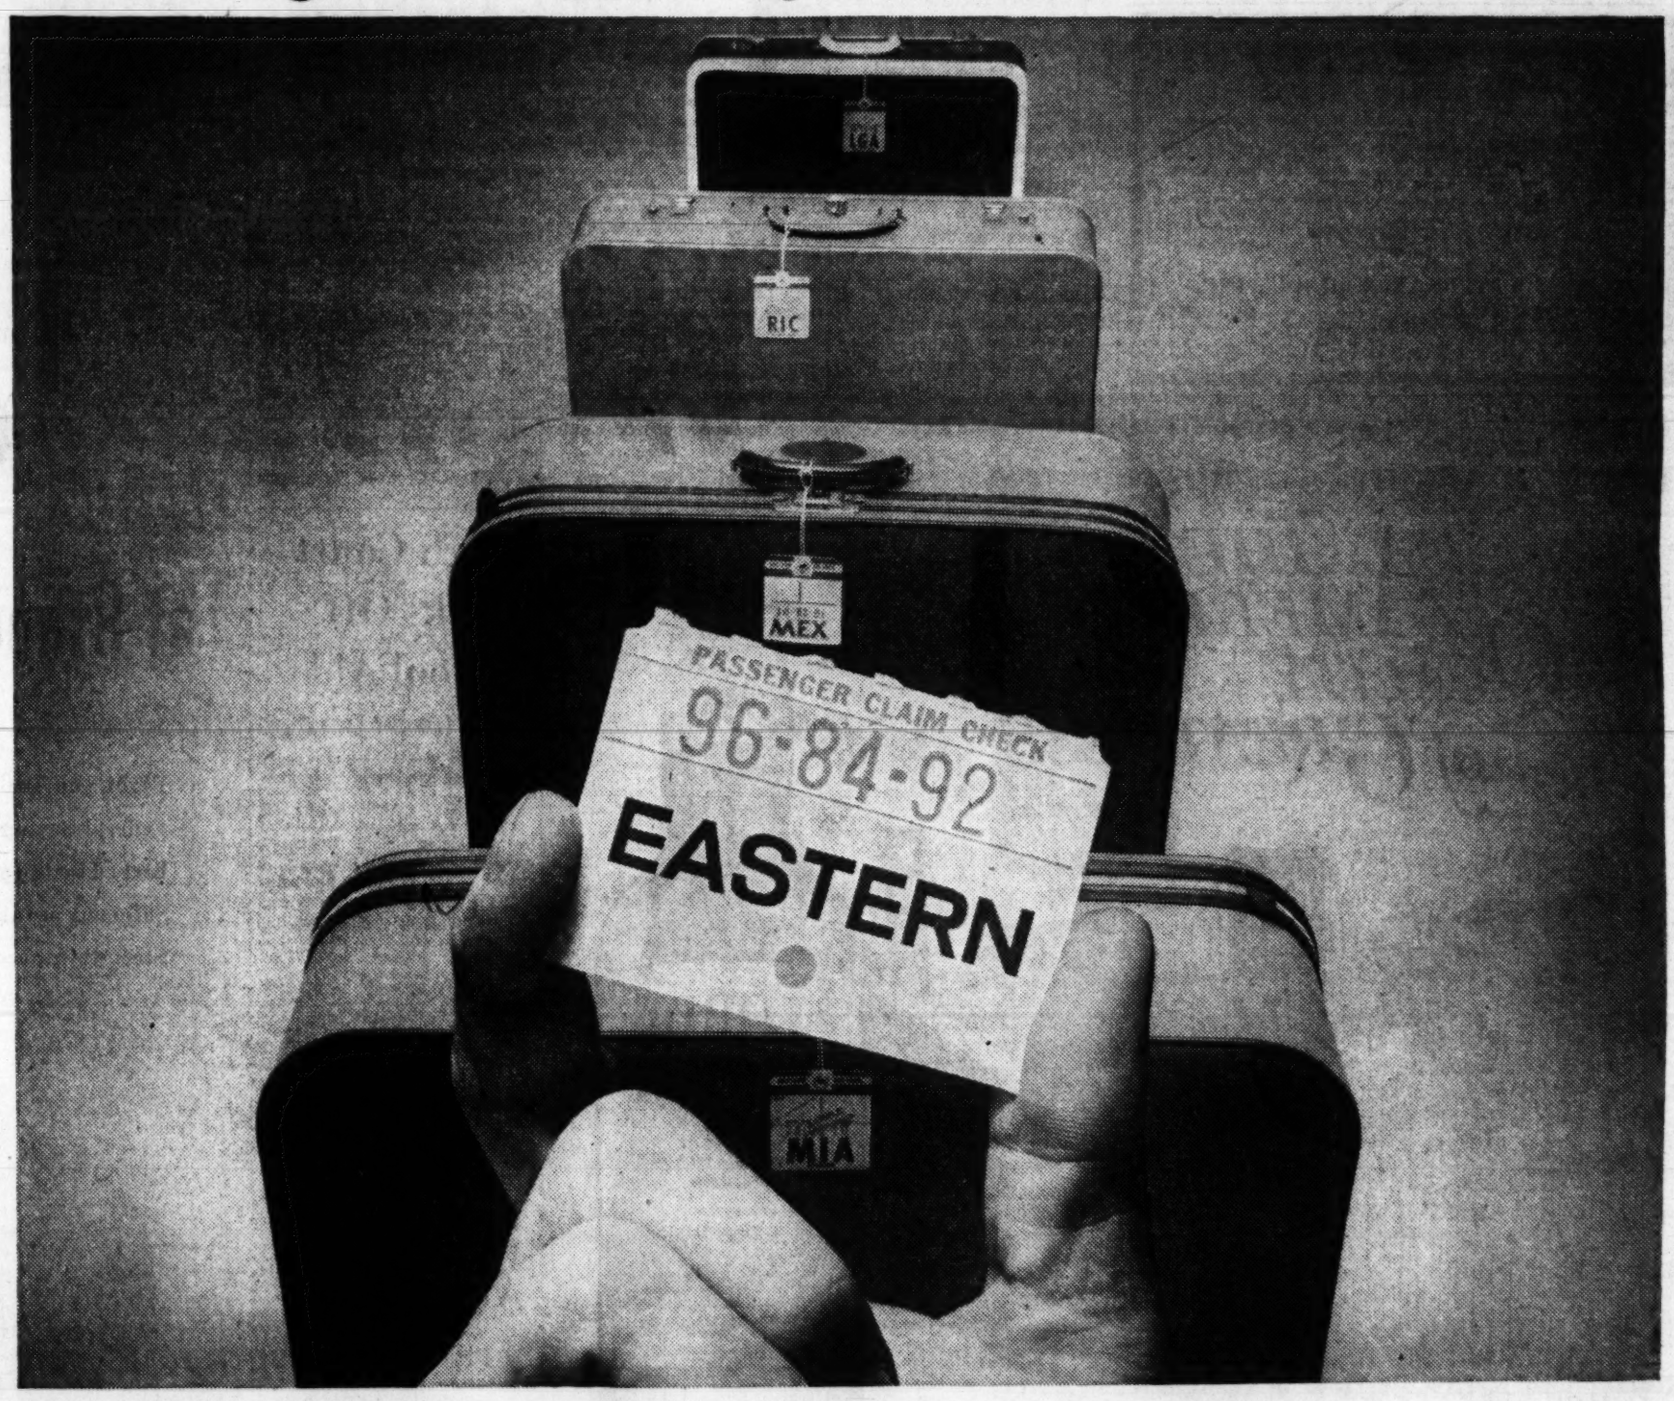
As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation)

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID's unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

COLONAID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital proved safe even for expectant mothers. And COLONAID won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or other food nutrients. Get COLONAID today! INTRODUCTORY SIZE 43¢

New things are happening at EASTERN AIR LINES...



How we took the "wait" out of baggage

How many times have you had to wait—and wait and wait—before you finally got your baggage? Well, Eastern is actually doing something about it. Under Eastern's new system—now working successfully at a number of major terminals—we try to get your luggage to the baggage claim area before you get there! That way you can pick it up just as fast as you can pick it out. No waiting. No tipping.

And for the really-in-a-hurry traveler, Eastern offers still another extra: carry-on baggage service. On first-class flights you can take your luggage on board. This lets you bypass terminal crowds and get away from the airport the instant you step off the ramp!

Improved baggage-handling methods are one of many new services—all designed to bring you jet speed and jet efficiency on the ground as well as in the air... to make Eastern the world's most dependable airline...with the world's most satisfied passengers.

would be in a position to cut them off.

The Pentagon refused to comment on Magruder's statement.

There were some indications that the coup committee did not have support of the entire ROK military organization. Some sources said that Lt. Gen Chang Do Yung, who headed the revolutionary committee, had been reluctant to go along with the coup.

RESISTANCE CRUSHED

The coup troops quickly crushed resistance in Seoul Tuesday and formed an anti-Communist military government pledged to friendship with the United States. They imposed martial law throughout the nation. No Koreans were allowed to leave and domestic air services halted.

The revolt toppled the government of Premier Chang who himself won leadership after a students' revolution ended the regime of President Syngman Rhee a year ago.

President Posun Yun was placed under house arrest at his presidential mansion and Chang was held at his own home on the northern outskirts of Seoul. All members of the cabinet were arrested.

MARINES SEIZE SEOUL

Marines and paratroopers took over Seoul in battles with civilian police and some military police who apparently were not informed that the coup was coming.

There were no confirmed reports of casualties but unconfirmed reports said five or six police were killed when troops attacked with machineguns, mortars and artillery at 3:30 a.m. (2 p.m. EST Monday).

At 6 a.m. the revolt leaders announced they controlled all major cities in South Korea. They set up a revolutionary committee headed by Army Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Chang Do Yung, one of the most respected men in the ROK Army.

By dawn Seoul appeared almost normal except for heavy troop concentrations at government buildings and at street intersections. Reports from other areas indicated the situation was quiet. Martial law commanders were appointed in all the provinces.

Throughout the day there were scattered volleys of rile fire but most of the shooting incidents were warnings to drivers who failed to obey new traffic regulations.

The committee issued a six-point manifesto calling upon the armed forces to strengthen South Korea's anti-Communist stand, to eliminate all corruption in the government and better the people's livelihood, to build the national economy and to unify Korea with a stronger stand against communism.

The heaviest fighting was reported in front of the Ministry of Defense where apparently some military police remained loyal to the Chang government. Fighting also was reported at the Bando Hotel across the street from the U.S. Embassy.

Most of the city was asleep and revolt came as a surprise despite constant grumbling by the military since Chang became premier last August.

Abandoned as an Infant, He Knows What It's Like

Unable to locate his people, station authorities called police.

The story stated that the infant was admitted to Grady as a boarder and was christened Jesse Hardman for Dr. Jesse Hardman York, the physician who attended him. There the story stopped.

Several families set out to adopt the husky youngster and he eventually was placed in the home of a carpenter. The couple had three daughters. A son had died two years before.

PEOPLE TALKED

Wallace recalls that his early childhood was normal. When he reached 12 people had begun to talk as people will.

"Daddy got out the 'black box,' where he kept important papers," he recalled. "He began by showing me the adoption papers. Then he showed me the newspaper clippings and told me the story.

"He said he hadn't intended telling me until I was 21, but he was afraid that I'd hear it from someone else."

Was the boy heart-broken?

WONDERFUL FAMILY

"Not a bit of it," Wallace said. "That family was all over me, making a fuss and all. They were wonderful folks. Who could have wanted a better family."

Young Wallace attended West Haven Elementary School, West Fulton High School and during World War II served in the U.S. Navy in the Pacific.

He knows from personal experience, though, the kind of question that lingers at the back of your mind when you cannot be sure just who you are.

presumably with North Atlantic Treaty Organization members.

At the NATO foreign ministers meeting in Oslo, Norway, last week it was agreed that there should be full consultation between NATO members on all matters affecting the alliance.

It also was expected that President Kennedy would sound out Democratic Party leaders views when he meets with them Tuesday morning before leaving for Canada on a three-day state visit.

Finally, there was expectation that he would confer with the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees.

The tentative summit plans call for a meeting in a European capital immediately after President Kennedy's visit to France from May 31 to June 2. The likely place, informed officials said Monday, is Vienna.

On Capitol Hill some members of Congress warmly endorsed the meeting; others were cautious or noncommital. Some combined a "no comment" for the record with sharp private criticism.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat and Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said he thought it was "perfectly legitimate for these people to get together, but it ought not to be built up as a solution to the world's ills."

HOPES FOR INFORMALITY

He added a hope that "such a meeting would be as informal and with as little fanfare as possible."

Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, assistant Senate Democratic leader, said:

"The present world situation is too serious and too dangerous for anyone to stand on the ground rules of old-fashioned normal diplomacy. If any man can help to ease world tensions without compromising the position of the United States and other free nations, it is President Kennedy."

SEES NO HARM

On the Republican side, Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire said, "I can see no harm in such a meeting."

However, Sen. Bourke K. Hickenlooper, Iowa Republican and a Foreign Relations Committee member, said:

"I see no justification for it at the moment. I don't see any basis for hope of success."

One Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Albert Gore of Tennessee, put himself firmly on record as opposed to a meeting.

"Such a meeting at this time," he said, "is ill advised and untimely. Neither the climate nor the condition of the issues is advantageous for the United States now."

The first tentative moves for a conference began a month ago, but officials declined to say whether the United States or the Soviet Union took the initiative. In the last two weeks the exchanges were intensified. All the U. S. messages were transmitted through Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson, Jr., in Moscow.

by the American delegation to block the entry of the Pathet Lao, a Communist organization, to the conference on terms of equality with the royal government.

The formula for bringing the three Laotian parties into the conference as individuals rather than as governments was devised by the British. Rusk rejected it Sunday. After consultation with President John F. Kennedy, he agreed Monday largely, it was said, because of the administration's desire to learn if the "Austrian-type neutrality" suggested by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is possible in Laos.

There may have been other more powerful motivations for the U.S. agreement. But before the international audience of diplomats, officials, newspaper, radio and television correspondents the U.S. sought one result and, in the end, accepted second best.

people, lost amounts ranging from $1,000 to $250,000.

An SEC investigator said the Pruett firm, founded in 1952, reportedly was insolvent and could not repay its customers.

In an affidavit filed with Judge Hooper, SEC investigator Walter C. Johnson said Mrs. Pruett admitted:

1. Money and securities belonging to customers had been misappropriated and used for her personal use and benefit, and to satisfy claims of other customers whose funds and securities had previously been misused and who were asking for settlement.

PROBE UNDER WAY

2. That customers' securities had been pledged as collateral on bank loans without their consent, and in some cases she had obtained loans from banks in the name of customers without their knowledge and consent by signing their names on such loans and on checks issued by the banks for such loans.

Johnson said Mrs. Pruett said the firm was insolvent, had been for two years, and didn't have the money to repay its customers.

FALSE ENTRIES CHARGED

An SEC official said any question of criminal charges against the Pruetts would be decided at the end of the current investigation of their affairs.

The SEC also charged the Pruetts with making false entries in the firm's books and records.

How To Use Water To END YOUR CONSTIPATION WORRIES

Here's how to get to the basic root of your constipation problem. Bring enough moisture to your lower colon every day. As soon as food wastes are normally moistened, they will "move" as they should and you will enjoy daily elimination.

So do this to end your constipation worries. Take SERUTAN every day with plenty of water. SERUTAN is a pure vegetable gel which carries twenty times its weight in water to your lower digestive tract where it is needed to promote more normal regularity.

SERUTAN provides the proper moisture, bulk and peristaltic action to help keep you regular. This is utterly different from chemical laxatives which cause diarrhea and may dry you out.

Get SERUTAN today. Use it faithfully as directed for at least one week. You must enjoy daily regularity or your money back from the maker.

ing. But it fell short of providing a definitive opinion on such cases.

However, the action was expected to figure in the controversy over President John F. Kennedy's aid-to-education bill. Kennedy, a Catholic, has declared his belief that the federal government cannot provide funds for private and religious schools below the college level.

The case also could have repercussions in other states which may have similar tuition programs. The appeal said that of 42,429 public school systems in the United States, 21,646 did not maintain high schools in 1960. Presumably, many of these systems have tuition plans similar to that of South Burlington.

and off the exchange. Commission officials said that they did not plan, at this time, to investigate the activities of any officials of the exchange.

The American Exchange, known until 1953 as the New York Curb Exchange, is the country's second largest. Ten days ago, after a year's investigation, the SEC ordered two of its members—Gerard A. Re (pronounced "Ray") and his son Gerald F.—expelled from the exchange, and revoked their firm's registration as securities brokers and dealers. The exchange had suspended them when the investigation began.

The men were specialists—"brokers' brokers" who buy and sell designated stocks to maintain an orderly auction market on the floor of the exchange.

The commission's investigators accused them of rigging nine stocks, causing unsuspecting investors to lose many millions of dollars. It was the first action the SEC had ever taken against specialists, and the penalties were the most severe it could impose.

The Big Money Problem

Long-Range Budget Earns Kentucky World Prestige

sion is a respected arm of the state government.

"Look at it this way," said a Kentucky official. "The governor goes to the Legislature with all the information. He knows better than anyone else where the weaknesses are, and where he could be attacked. So he will have all the technical data to support his argument."

The data comes from a team of young budget analysts headed by Robert Cornett, a former student in the Southern Regional Training Board program which picks about 10 promising young college seniors per year and stakes them to a year of graduate study in public administration.

With the help of several other graduates of this program on his staff, Cornett has an adequate group when budget-making time comes without a frantic search for capable budget analysts.

They have been at work full time helping various state agencies with their programs, and thus are intimately familiar with the state's program.

BLOCK ON BLOCK

Like many other states, Kentucky has a formalized system of constructing a budget, stacking block on block and cementing them together with research data until the building is finished.

The work begins in June of every odd-numbered year before the biennial session of the Legislature meets.

In a few weeks, Gov. Earl Combs will sennd out a memorandum to department heads telling them what he hopes the state can accomplish, and asking them to submit their wants and needs.

Department heads will be required to project their plans for the next two fiscal years. Thus forced to plan, they must sit down and carefully compute the long-range goals of their agencies.

YEARS IN ADVANCE

Take the Kentucky Highway Department. In submitting budget requests, it must plan for years in advance, figuring in federal funds and order of priority.

After its plans are clearly set down on paper, a round of conferences begins with the budget analysts. They work out any errors and simplify the procedures.

By Nov. 1, the department heads will begin trooping into Gov. Combs' office with their lists of needs. The governor will advise with them.

After these requests and decisions are made, the proposed budget law is printed. Combs' recommendations become the appropriation bill, but state law requires that the final requests from the department be printed alongside the governor's recommendations.

CAN COMPARE

Legislators thus can compare the figures, and decide whether the governor has been too harsh, or whether a department head has grandoise dreams of empire building.

If this were the sum and substances of the budget-making process, it would not be particularly impressive. But while the budgets are being drawn, a tax research council is working in the Revenue department to anticipate how much money will be available.

Using this as a counterbalance against the dreaming of the department heads, the governor is somewhat in the position of a referee (as are the top administrators in all alive and working companies).

Like many other states, Kentucky uses a priority system. It has projected budgets. Revenue could fall drastically below those budgets. Before taking a slash in all departments, however, Kentucky would cut down on its spending for new buildings and the like, figuring they could wait until the recession is over.

LOCAL SUPPORT HIGH

By delegating much more of the responsibility of supporting schools to the 120 counties, Kentucky has kept its taxes far below Georgia's.

But the $217 million it plans to spend next year already is lined up as straight and neat as the white board fences around the bluegrass pastures.

Using such budgeting procedures, the state has earned prestige from around the world. A Thailand government official roamed the Kentucky Capitol recently learning the system, and a Paraguayan finance officer is coming this summer, to mention two.

As summer comes, Kentucky's Office of Legislative Counsel is setting up its own budget experts to analyze the governor's figures and there will be another check.

Kentucky officials maintain that the most important step, by far, in their system is the coordination which the budget division creates.

Their conservation program, for instance, would help with the obviously overlapping functions of the Georgia Forestry department, Game and Fish division, Parks department and tourist promotion.

Their Finance Commission houses both the purchasing and budgeting divisions, and these are coordinated.

Other economies obviously flow from such research, study and development of programs.

But no one man is physically and mentally equipped with the stamina, grasp and vision to conduct a program. Therein lies the weakness of the Georgia system.

End of series.

Every man needs a good head of hair

• Ask yourself frankly, "Should I take steps to keep a good head of hair or won't it make any difference even if I do get bald?" Then look around at your friends and you have the answers. You readily see that the man with a good head of hair looks younger than the bald friend of the same age. And because he looks younger — he has a little edge when business promotions are under consideration. And you never hear a woman speak of a bald man as "tall, dark and handsome." Here again a good head of hair gives you a little edge.

• Keeping a good head of hair may not be as difficult as you think it might be. First, just consult a Thomas hair and scalp specialist. He knows how to recognize and treat the various local scalp ills which cause baldness. He knows, too, how to remove dandruff, relieve scalp itch and how to promote normal hair growth. Talk to him today — come in for consultation and advice. No charge or obligation.

Freeway Connector To Open May 23

One-Way Streets Reworked To Provide Temporary Route

Revision of traffic flows to provide a temporary and direct connector between the North and South Expressways will become operative Tuesday, May 23, City Traffic Engineer Karl Bevins said Monday.

Bevins said details incident to implementing the connector to speed the flow of traffic while the permanent connector is being completed are being pushed as rapidly as possible. He predicted the switch can be made by May 23, barring heavy rains.

The existing one-way flow for southbound traffic on Courtland Street from Ponce de Leon Avenue to Harris Street will be extended one-way south to Gilmer Street at the City Auditorium.

In addition, the one-way stretch for northbound traffic along Washington Street from Mitchell to Gilmer streets will be abandoned and northbound and southbound traffic will be allowed to use it.

The changes along Courtland and Washington streets will provide a direct route from the North Expressway to the south leg, which now begins at Washington Street and Memorial Drive.

Gilmer Street, which is now one-way from Ivy Street to Courtland Street will be made one-way for another block eastward to Piedmont Avenue.

This will give traffic northbound to the north leg of the expressway an entry to Piedmont Avenue.

Piedmont Avenue is now one-way for northbound traffic from Ellis Street to North Avenue. This will be changed and will be extended to Decatur Street.

Under an arrangement between the city and Gov. Ernest Vandiver, the city will abandon parking on the west side of Washington Street fronting the Capitol. The state also will surrender its parking privileges on the west side.

Fulbright Bill Aids Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Monday introduced a bill to permit cotton farmers whose acreage was flooded out this year to transfer their acreage allotment to another farm in the same or an adjoining county.

Fulbright's aides said parts of Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Missouri, Kentucky and Louisiana would be affected.

A similiar bill by Rep. E. C. Gathings, D-Ark., has been approved by the House Agriculture Committee, they said.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR ATLANTAN IN HOSPITAL
L-R: Mr., Mrs. Sargent, Mrs. Humphreys, Donald Humphreys

Legless Donald Finds He Has Many Friends

Donald Humphreys may be without legs, but he's not without friends.

Monday night in a room on the fifth floor of Grady Hospital a group of them gathered to surprise him with a party on his 30th birthday.

It was a complete surprise.

"I knew it was my birthday," he said as he was wheeled into the room. "But I'm not used to the limelight. I'm kind of embarrassed."

His friends, including his mother, Mrs. Lillian Humphreys, of 3475 Boulder Park Dr., SW, were not. There was a chocolate cake, gifts and a pot of money for the man whose spinal cord was severed back in May, 1948, in an automobile crash.

On that fateful night, Donald, then 17 and a junior at West Fulton High School, was in a car with five other youths. The driver lost control in the 3400 block of Gordon Road. The car hit a telephone pole. Donald was thrown out and his back struck a tree. He was the only one injured. He lost both legs.

Since, he has undergone 39 operations, and has been hospitalized at Grady off and on for 13 yeras. At present he is suffering from an infection. His condition is fair, according to Horace Bearden, evening administrator, and Mrs. Nell Woodall, evening assistant director of nursing.

Donald has made frequent trips to the Rehabilitation Center in New York. Despite his ordeal, he remains cheerful and in good spirits.

The friends who gave him the party were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Evans, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Sargent, Mrs. C. T. Medley, and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lee.

City Board Gets School Attorney

Aldermen Okay New $8,700 Job

Atlanta aldermen Monday approved the Atlanta Board of Education's request for its own attorney to handle city school business.

Salary for the new post was set at $8,700 a year.

SHORTER WEEK ASKED

Aldermen referred to the finance committee the request of the Council of Atlanta City Employes for a 40-hour work week, with no reduction in pay.

The employes' resolution asked for eight-hour days and five-day weeks, plus time and one-half pay for overtime.

Mayor William B. Hartsfield won acceptance of two traffic court officials he nominated for re-appointment. Judge Charlie O. Murphy was re-appointed for another four-year term as traffic court judge, and T. C. Little won re-appointment as prosecutor for the Traffic Court.

MEMBERS APPOINTED

New members appointed to the Building Code Advisory Board were H. N. Pye, chairman, and A. P. Almond, S. W. Boyd and R. G. Lose, members.

Appointed to serve on the Atlanta Fund Appeals Review Board for three-year terms were Samuel L. Elpan, Mrs. Gene Goslee, Redfern Hollins, Robert Regenstein, Hugh I. Richardson Jr., Dr. J. P. Wesberry, and E. A. Wright.

Named to the fund appeals board for two-year terms were Ashton J. Albert, L. Douglas Cook, Everhart Cunningham, Willis J. Davis, Mrs. W. A. Morse, Ray Spitler and Joseph A. Wyant.

OTHERS NAMED

Selected to serve one-year terms were Frank E. Blankenship, R. H. Gaines, J. Harvey Irwin, W. W. Kilgore, Sam Levy, Mrs. Bomar A. Olds and Mrs. Ruth Smith Wrench.

Referred to the zoning committee for study was the request of Dr. P. J. Brown, Atlanta veterinarian, who wants to establish a "Poodle Parlor" for little dogs at Lenox Square.

Aldermen also approved changing the name of Booker Street, SW, to Thurgood Street, SW, and Gerard Avenue, NW, to Eleventh Street, NW.

City Asked to Repeal Ban on Transfer Fees

Atlanta aldermen have been asked to change a 1902 law so as to permit the Atlanta Transit System to charge a nickel for trolley transfers.

Robert Summerville, transit company president, is asking repeal of the 1902 law, which was cited April 5 by the Georgia Public Service Commission in turning down the transit firm's request for permission to charge five cents for transfers.

Must Box With Reds, Editor Says

The Atlanta Rotary Club was told Monday that America must "learn to box as well as slug" in the fight against communism.

"We are out of joint with history if we let a crowd of cynical demagogues peddle slavery to the world while we fumble our presentation of freedom," said Eugene Patterson, editor of The Atlanta Constitution.

"We've got a better item," he said. "If it isn't catching on, it's our own fault."

Although this country has failed on some fronts to sell freedom as a way of life, Patterson said astronaut Alan Shepard had emerged as "a symbol of a new deetrmination in this land."

Shepard's feat was "a dramatic offering to the world of our intention to light some fires for freedom, no matter the cost, no matter the peril," Patterson said.

Doctors to Hold Seminar On U.S. Strategy Here

A "Physicians' Seminar on American Strategy" will be held June 3 at the First Baptist Church.

It will be sponsored by the Fulton County Medical Society, the Third Army and the "Education for Freedom" organization.

Education for Freedom is the new name of Project Alert, which was organized recently to present "to all citizens a clear view of the Communist challenge," said its chairman, R. Randolph Richardson.

The seminar program will include:

Frank R. Barnett, program director of the Institute for American Strategy, "Operational Techniques of the Communist Conspiracy;" Gerhart Niemeyer, political science professor at Notre Dame, "Basic Tenets of Communist Theology;" retired Adm. Chester Ward, "The Role of Weapons in the Total Struggle," and the film, "Nightmare in Red," National Broadcasting Co.

Kennedy Picks Bolivia Envoy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ben S. Stephansky, 48, a career foreign service officer, was nominated by President John F. Kennedy Monday to be ambassador to Bolivia.

Stephansky was born in Russia, became a U.S. citizen in 1925, and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1939.

An economist, he served with the War Production Board in 1942 and 1943 and was a mediation officer with the War Labor Board from 1943 to 1945. After the war he served with the New York State Department of Labor and as faculty member of Sarah Lawrence College and the University of Chicago.

He joined the U.S. Foreign Service in 1952 as labor attache in Mexico City.

Harry Harkavy of Miami Beach gained a sizable swing for his team in the recent Vanderbilt Knock-Out event on a hand where a slight slip on defense could have resulted in the loss of 1,700 points.

Harkavy, seated West, opened the bidding with one diamond. East offered a jump raise to three diamonds and South naturally felt impelled to compete with three hearts. It is true that the adversaries had announced great strength and that the conditions of vulnerability were unfavorable, but South's call is regarded by us as a well-calculated risk. West doubled and all hands passed.

The ace of diamonds was opened and declarer ruffed. At trick two he casually led a low trump toward the ten in dummy. If Harkavy had chosen to play second hand low, the contest would have been over virtually before it started, for, granted access to dummy, South would be able to take the club finesse to establish his side suit. Once this is done, declarer can afford to drive out the ace of trumps, for, even though he is forced again in diamonds, he is able to pick up the rest of the trumps. He loses only two spades and one heart to score an overtrick.

However, when the low trump was led, Harkavy put up his ace of hearts in order to lead another diamond. This brought declarer down to the same size in trumps as his opponent and when a club trick was conceded to East's king, another round of diamonds caused South to lose control of the hand. He wound up with five heart tricks and one club for a deficit of 800 points.

At the other table, the East-West pair reached a three no-trump contract uncontested, after West opened the bidding with one heart. Ten tricks were taken for a score of 430 points. This gave Harkavy's team a net gain of 370 points.

Boy Dies Of Scooter Injuries

A 9-year-old boy died Monday of injuries suffered Sunday when his scooter wagon was struck by a pickup truck near his home, police said.

The death of Wayne Ware, Negro, of 146 Sewanee Ave., NE, brought fatalities for Atlanta this year to 14. This was five fewer than the number killed in a corresponding period of last year.

Traffic investigator B. L. Anderson said the truck driver, Emerson Neely, 31, of 1070 Joyce St., SW, surrendered at police headquarters Monday and was charged with disorderly conduct-manslaughter, leaving the scene of an accident and failure to have a driver's license.

Woman Slays Common-Law Husband

An Atlanta woman fatally stabbed her common-law husband with a butcher knife which she had been using to butter a corn muffin, police said Monday.

Leon C. Webb, 57-year-old construction company employe, was found dead Monday in an apartment at 88 Spruce St., NE, Lt. G. H. Christian said.

Christian said Webb had been stabbed in the shoulder and chest. He said that Mrs. Emmy Lou Webb, 47, told him and Detectives Harry McCollister and E. F. McKillob that the wounds were inflicted Sunday. The officers said Mrs. Webb, who gained her name from a previous marriage, told them she did not believe the wounds to be serious until she touched Webb Monday and "found that he was cold."

Mrs. Webb, held for suspicion of murder, was quoted by officers that she and Webb drank wine and whisky Friday, Saturday and Sunday. She was quoted that she was buttering a corn muffin Sunday when "I raised my hand to wipe the perspiration from my face and the knife knicked him in the shoulder. "That made him mad and he kicked at me. I stabbed him in the chest."

The officers said they were told Webb sat down in a chair, then fell to the floor. They said Mrs. Webb said she went to sleep, awoke and asked Webb to come to bed "and he just grunted."

BAINBRIDGE CHEERS

Cheney Griffin Gets Hero's Homecoming

Constitution State News Service

BAINBRIDGE—Mayor R. A. (Cheney) Griffin got a hero's welcome here Monday when he returned to town following his acquittal by a Fulton County jury of charges that he did business with the state while he was a full time state employe.

Griffin was greeted at the Bainbridge Airport by a motorcade of approximately 200 cars. He rode a mile into a town in an open convertible and waved at spectators lining the streets.

The Bainbridge High School band paraded in front of the motorcade and played martial music. Bainbridge merchants closed up shop for an hour to participate in the "homecoming celebration" for Griffin, brother and former aide of former Gov. Marvin Griffin.

Two spectators waved a large sign saying: "Welcome Home Cheney."

The parade made its way to Willis Park in downtown Bainbridge where Mayor Griffin mounted a speaker's platform with a dozen other local dignitaries including Marvin Griffin.

Mayor Griffin told an audience of between 300 and 400 persons that "both the charges and the indictments against me were strictly political . . . but I'm not mad at anybody. I'm just too happy to be back in Bainbridge with my fellow citizens."

Marvin Griffin also addressed the crowd and said he believed his political enemies were trying to attack him by bringing charges against his brother.

But he declared he would not be intimidated by such charges.

"I'll be there at the final rail-splitting," Griffin told the cheering audience.

M. F. Moncrief Heads Advertising Club

Moreland F. Moncrief was elected president Monday night of the Atlanta Advertising Club.

Other new officers were Richard E. Hodges Jr., first vice president; Fred A. George, second vice president, and Loring Blackstone, secretary-treasurer.

Named to the board of directors were M. L. Boyd Jr., W. L. Guyton, Earnest DeLong and John W. Moore Jr.

Mercer Alumni Plan June 23 Banquet Here

Mercer University alumni will hold a banquet here June 23 to climax a Loyalty Fund drive which already is more than half subscribed.

Wallace Butts, University of Georgia athletic director and a star Mercer football end before he was graduated in 1928, will speak at the dinner, to be held at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel here.

Hugh Carney, a member of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, said more than half the $25,000 fund goal for the Atlanta area already has been subscribed.

Carney, who heads the drive in the area, said tickets to the dinner are on sale at $5 each, and that a large turnout is expected.

Stomach Gas Often Linked to False Teeth

Folks with false or bad teeth often can't chew right, and if you can't chew right, improperly chewed food may overtax your stomach and bring on gas pains, heartburn, heaviness, belching, sour stomach; gnawing, burning pain, due to acid indigestion. Now, to give your digestion help it may need, a prominent New York doctor formulated a remarkable prescription discovery — GMD — which, taken regularly, helps your stomach get ready for food before you eat—stimulates flow of digestive juices, which in turn help your digestion, thus prevents gas, heartburn, sour stomach, belching, heaviness in the pit of the stomach, gnawing, burning pain, due to acid indigestion.

Now, with your stomach working properly you eat the food you like without fear!

GMD must bring you the results you may have been seeking for years, you must avoid these stomach miseries due to acid indigestion and eat like a normal, healthy person, or your money will be fully refunded. Get GMD (Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery) at your drug counter today. Tablets $1. Also liquid. Already over 38 million packages have been sold.

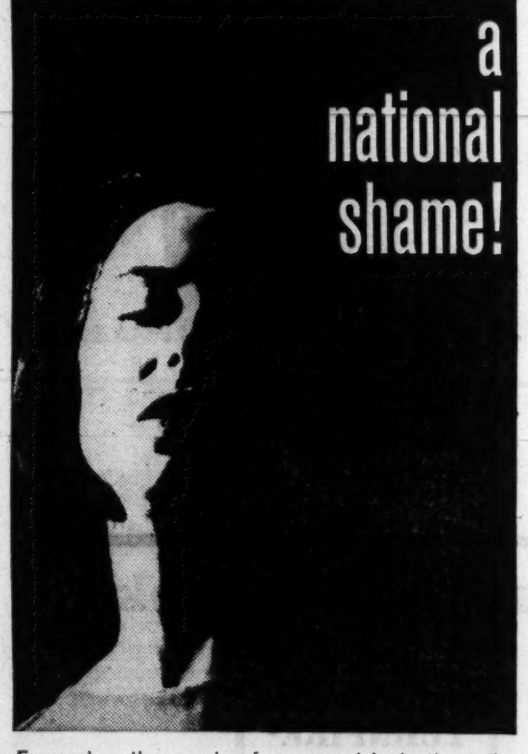
ABORTION: a national shame!



Every day, thousands of women risk death at the hands of abortionists. What kind of women are they? Who are the so-called "professional" abortionists who perform these illegal operations?

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, John Bartlow Martin—one of America's foremost reporters—probes the million-dollar abortion racket. You'll learn why few criminal abortionists are trained doctors—and why most are bungling butchers. How abortion has grown into the nation's third-largest racket. Whether unwed girls or married women have the most abortions. And what we must do to stamp out this tragic crime! Read "Abortion" in this week's Post.

Stewart Udall: tough, two-fisted cabinet member! Stewart Udall is Kennedy's controversial new Secretary of the Interior. And he's a sure bet to stir up Congress this year—with some surprising new plans for federal spending! Read "Secretary of Things in General" in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

Willie Mays defends Negro ballplayers! When asked what was wrong with last year's Giants, many critics charged, "Too many Negroes." How does Willie Mays answer this blast? How much prejudice is alive in baseball? How did Leo Durocher once squelch Willie Mays? Don't miss "A Visit With Willie Mays."

The Madcap Princess' footman tells "what Princess Margaret's family doesn't want me to tell about her" in

STARTING SUNDAY, MAY 21

IN THE ATLANTA JOURNAL

. . . exclusive in The Journal in Georgia

David John Payne in the livery he wore as personal footman to Her Royal Highness Princess Margaret.

DAVID JOHN PAYNE, personal footman gives the reader an intimate look into the private life of royalty in his series about one of the world's most publicized and controversial princesses. Queen Mother Elizabeth obtained a temporary injunction against publication of the 28-year-old footman's story.

THE ATLANTA JOURNAL will publish this story beginning Sunday, May 21, and will continue in seven subsequent daily installments. The footman describes Princess Margaret as "a woman with a temperament as changeable as the wind." He says the reader will "find my story at times delightful, at others saddening." On Sunday, May 21, Georgia readers will be able to judge this story for themselves.

Eichmann Power to Kill Unlimited, Judge Says

JERUSALEM (UPI)—A Pennsylvania Supreme Court judge testified Monday that Adolf Eichmann was a trusted member of the Hitler inner clique which decreed "the extermination of the Jewish people." He said Eichmann even insisted that Jewish Allied fliers captured by the Nazis be shot.

Judge Michael Angelo Musmanno told an Israeli court trying Eichmann for the murder of 6,000,000 Jews that the defendant "had unlimited power to decide what Jews were to be killed, when and in what country."

Musmanno, who once headed a Nurenberg war crimes tribunal, swore that Eichmann went out into the field to direct a special Nazi flying squadron—a "slaughterhouse on wheels"—whose sole duty was to search out and kill Jews.

Eichmann grew pale and squirmed in his chair as the slim white-haired Pittsburgh judge struck a severe blow at the defense story that the defendant was an obscure little lieutenant colonel who headed a minor department and blindly obeyed orders that filtered down from the Nazi high command.

Musmanno testified Eichmann was a member of Nazi inner circles, that he could and did go over the heads of his superiors to Heinrich Himmler, chief of all Nazi police. He said Eichmann had the authority to invoke Hitler's name if anyone got in his way.

Eichmann's German defense attorney, Robert Servatius, fought a bitter, last-ditch-battle to keep Musmanno from testifying.

3,000 Patrolling Paris To Prevent Bombings

PARIS (UPI)—A police force of 3,000 patrolled Paris Monday night and manned 250 roadblocks to meet the threat of terrorist bombings with the approach of the French-rebel peace talks on Algeria.

The talks are scheduled to open Saturday at Evian-Les-Bains on the French side of Lake Geneva and officials feared right-wing terrorists would step up the bombing attacks to halt the negotiators or halt the current toward Algerian independence.

At the roadblocks, police ordered drivers to open the hoods and trunks of their cars in a search for explosives or "French Algeria" propaganda.

During the weekend, eight bombs blasted pro-Gaullist clubs and left-wing offices in Paris and provincial towns. Another bomb early Monday damaged the home of Gaullist Deputy Jean Lepidi near the Boise de Boulogne, slightly injuring the landlord and his wife.

In Algiers, 28,000 soldiers and policemen continued to patrol the city. They were under orders to shoot at the first sign of major settler trouble.

Hopes ran high among government officials that the Evian talks will open on schedule.

Moslem rebel sources in Tunis were putting out broad hints the very first day of the talks might be decisive.

U.N. Force Pulls Out Of Strike-Torn Kasai

By HENRY TANNER

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

LEOPOLDVILLE—The United Nations has withdrawn most of its troops from the "independent mining state" of South Kasai and has stopped all its civilian and famine relief operations there.

The withdrawal was announced Monday in a press release issued by the office of Mekki Abbas, acting head of the U.N. Mission. It constitutes a basic change in military tactics of the United Nations in the Congo.

KILLINGS CITED

The release said the withdrawal was the result of the recent killing at Port Francqui in North Kasai of an undetermined number of U.N. soldiers by Congolese troops. It cited as another reason the fact that "tribal conflict appears to be endemic" in the area.

In the past the presence of the United Nations in an area had been regarded as a needed deterrent to tribal fighting and "civil war."

But U.N. officers Monday explained that a decision had been made to concentrate the international forces in a few areas rather than having them spread out in small groups. The officers said the high command had come to the conclusion that "a unit of less than company strength" could not effectively protect itself.

GHANAIANS SEIZED

At Port Francqui a unit of Ghanaians was rushed by hundreds of Congolese, disarmed and made prisoner. Officially the conceded toll was three Ghanaians known dead; two British officers and two Swedish members of a movement control unit "presumed dead," and 38 Ghanaians "missing." Since the incident took place nearly two weeks ago there is practically no hope that the missing men may be alive.

In another development it was learned Monday that seven prominent politicians and army officers had been arrested in Stanleyville by the leftist regime of Antoine Gizenga. All the arrested men were known to be moderates, reports said.

200 Girls Flee As Bees Dive Into Barracks

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP)—A single civilian drove off an enemy that had put 200 army girls—and some army men—to rout.

The enemy was a swarm of bees which settled in the women's billet at Dreghorn, near here, and then dive-bombed the girls, sending them screaming.

The Royal Army Service Corps—a detachment of men—was summoned. The bees started for them—and they retreated.

So the army called in an expert from the bee advisory department of Edinburgh College of Agriculture. He saved the day.

As I See It

Likes Price Is Right, Angry Reader Writes

By PAUL JONES

"Will you please keep your big mouth shut!"

That is the manner in which an Athens television fan began a letter I opened Monday morning.

"I and many others are fed up reading your articles unjustly knocking the TV show The Price Is Right.

"Just because you dislike the program does not mean that everyone else does. I am glad that many people differ with you. Many good shows would be dropped if they listened to you.

Jones

"If you had an opportunity to sit in on The Price Is Right panel and were lucky enough to win a car or a mink coat, you would grab it like a chicken eats corn.

"If you dislike the good shows so much, just turn the dial or HUSH."

IT SEEMS I not only antagonized the Athens viewer but R. G. Underwood, viewer and one-time "Fire-Chief Bob" of WAGA-TV.

"I'm sick, sick, sick of the way commercial television has been trampled and kicked around during the past week. I am particularly disturbed by the fact that this latest onslaught was prompted by none other than the new FCC chairman N. W. Minow in an address before 2,200 delegates to the convention of the National Association of Broadcasters.

"Chairman Minow described much of American television as 'a vast wasteland'. Minow demanded that station operators immediately take steps to improve programming.

"His words had not echoed through the hall when radio and TV editors around the country grabbed an extra supply of paper and began pounding out thousands of words. To read some of the papers you would almost get the idea that television was the reason for the space gap between the USA and the Soviet Union.

"Paul, Ole Buddy, all this hue and cry has done got to Ole Bob. Broadcasting has been pretty good to me and I would have a tough time looking myself in the mirror to shave tomorrow morning if I didn't offer by humble statement in its defense. Broadcasters are giving the public what the public wants most. Minow failed to point out in his address that those programs that 'contain too much violence and mediocrity' are among the highest-rated programs.

"Now that I've sounded off I feel I must tell you, Paul, and Mr. Minow that you folks can't count on me for much help in elevating viewing standards. Why? Well, it's really pretty simple. I like the hell outta Wagon Train and Garry Moore."

Wagon Train is a good Western series. Garry Moore's program excells in the variety category. I merely gave audience to statements by leaders in the broadcast industry and Minow because I wanted to point out that TV critics (and this includes almost everybody who owns a set) are not the only people dissatisfied with some of the sights we see in the picture window.

"YOUR COLUMN, As I See It of May 11, gladdened my heart; of all those writing about entertainment for the Atlanta papers you seem to be the only one who believes in the judgment of the Atlanta audience with regard to movies they select to attend," writes Hill Bermont of Athens.

Christine Gilliam

"The article by your colleague of The Journal of a couple of days ago, still implied that any film which Mrs. (Christine) Gilliam sees fit to label as filthy, is consequently under suspicion.

"Thank you for your understanding and I am sure with leadership such as yours Atlanta's movie audience will become free to see the fine films that have been kept from them and those future releases which from now on will elude the grasp of Mrs. Gilliam and her board."

Scouting TV Tonight

Dick Powell, Joey Bishop Emcee TV's Coast to Coast Pats on Back

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—It's TV's turn to pat itself on the back. Joey Bishop in New York and Dick Powell in Hollywood are in charge of The Emmy Awards.

It's coast-to-coast hour-and-a-half of stars on parade. About 30 minutes of prefilmed skits are interwoven. These will include stars of existing shows in sketches lampooning various phases of TV and awards. Yogi Bear is funniest with machine that comes up with 6½-hour show to please everyone.

This program will open outside Moulin Rouge in Hollywood, then move inside. In New York, it originates in Ziegfeld Theater. 10-11:30 (Ch. 2).

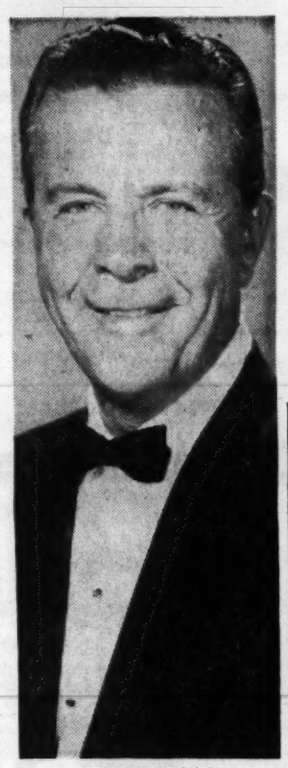
8:30-9 (Ch. 11)—"The Land of the Black Ghost" is the concluding episode on Close-Up's two-part study of Kenya's recent general elections. In fine scenes, native and white candidates campaign Western style (voice-over technique used to translate some speeches); excitement mounts as election day nears. Question to be answered: will natives vote along tribal lines? Focus is on three candidates—one native, one Englishman siding with natives, one old-line Englishman.

8:30-9 (Ch. 5)—The stage gets into Dobie Gillis' blood Tuesday. He's playing major in camp play and runs afoul of girl who speaks only to officers. So he continues his characterization—phony mustache and all—to woo her. Her father (a real colonel) comes along, and complications ensue. This mildly amusing episode comes to attention in final scene.



EMMY HOST
Dick Powell

8:30-9 (Ch. 2)—Alfred Hitchcock Presents weird one from pen of Robert Bloch, who wrote the original story of "Psycho." Susan Harrison plays mixed-up student who uses pair of white gloves and warped mind to gain attention. Her little plot backfires, gloves and all.

9-9:30 (Ch. 5)—The problem of where to go on vacation occupies The Tom Ewell Show. The family believes in togetherness, so they must find a very special spot to please them all. It's difficult—and funny. In a running gag, youngest child (Eileen Chesis) garbles Tom's messages and gets others excited about exotic trips.

9-10 (Ch. 11)—James Drury seems to be type-cast as blind gunman—he played one on The Rebel and he does it again tonight, in fine acting style, on Stagecoach West. For obscure reasons, he's out to kill singer Ruta Lee and her husband, Whit Bissell. His seeing-eye dog bites into plot in mildly surprising climax.

10-10:30 (Ch. 11)—Alcoa Presents story of possession, that odd business of one person acting like another. American professor in Latin America, mild and anti-violence, changes into dedicated assassin after few whiffs of strange flower. Story is very loosely based on '36 case but flower grew in writer Mervin Gerard's imagination.

'Buster Brown' Dies in Texas

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—The original "Buster Brown," who delighted children for more than 20 years as he toured the nation with his dog "Tige," for a shoe company, died Sunday.

He was Jack Fox, 77, who retired 25 years ago when he came to Fort Worth.

Surplus Foods Passed Out To 1,243 in First Day Here

A total of 1,243 Fulton countians received U.S. surplus commodities Monday as the county began its food distribution program is expected to eventually reach 50,000 needy people.

Fulton Commission Vice Chairman Jim Aldredge said that the operation smoothed out in the afternoon after a slightly snarled beginning. He said most of the trouble was caused by people coming on the wrong day and by people coming in the morning who were scheduled to receive food in the afternoon.

Aldredge said the 43 volunteers and full-time employes assigned to distribute the food at the Old Farmers' Market warehouse distributed about two carloads of foodstuffs the first day.

Those benefitted Monday were welfare recipients, Aldredge said. He said some recipients represented families numbering nine.

About 1,400 nonwelfare recipients are scheduled to receive foodstuffs Tuesday. Aldredge said that by the end of the month 2,000 people a day will receive food.

Only Atlantans are getting their food at the Old Farmers' Market. In north Fulton County, 450 persons who registered will receive their food at Roswell Saturday. About 400 people in south Fulton will pick their food up in Fairburn the following Saturday, May 27.

U.S. Marshal Andrews Taking Oath Today

GAINESVILLE (UPI)—Federal Judge Frank Hooper will swear in W. J. Andrews at 11 a.m. Tuesday as the new U.S. marshal for the Northern District of Georgia.

Andrews, whose appointment was approved last week by Congress, succeeds H. C. Littlefield.

Legislators Prod Race for Industry

Industry, peaches and police were selected for interim study Monday by the Senate's Government Operations Committee. And several senators agreed that the state Department of Commerce needs to be strengthened to attract industry to Georgia.

Sen. Sam J. Gardner Jr. of Moultrie said the committee should "come up with something to get Georgia in the race (for industry) competitively with other states."

Sen. W. T. Jones of Roberta said Georgia needs thorough labor and industrial surveys. Florida has such surveys, Jones added, and Georgia could get "three or four times" more industry with them.

Industries looking for sites want to act quickly, Jones said, and "we're not prepared for it."

Sen. Harry Jackson of Columbus suggested that the committee meet with private engineering and consulting firms "to ask what we need to do." Private consultants play key roles in picking industrial locations, Jackson said.

Jones said the State Department of Commerce and industrial development officials of the Georgia Power Co. "haven't been together" and should work more closely.

Gardner said the committee should "find out what other states are doing" and "come up with a proposal to implement a nonpartisan, nonpolitical, adequately financed industrial development program."

Another subject selected for study by the committee is the possibility of setting up peach processing plants. Jones said $1.5 million worth of peaches not suitable for sale as fresh peaches could be dried for preserves and other uses.

This would be similar to Florida's plants making orange juice concentrate, Jones noted. Jones reported that some Georgia growers plan to visit a California peach processing plant July 26

The committee chairman, Sen. J. W. Claxton of Wrightsville, pointed out that the Senate president, Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd, has recommended that the committee look into the peach matter.

Byrd also is interested, Claxton reported, in the proposed Georgia police academy.

The committee decided to collect and study information from other states and meet June 2 with a committee from the Peace Officers Association of Georgia.

Razor Bandit Surrenders After Escape

Atlanta's fleet-footed "razor bandit" Monday led a short-lived three-man prison break from a highway work detail near Hawkinsville, the State Board of Corrections said.

Two of the escapees were chased down and arrested soon after the escape on Highway 247 near the Bibb-Houston County line, officers said.

The razor bandit, Henry Maxie Brannon, 20, of Atlanta, outstripped a pack of bloodhounds for the day but at 7:30 p.m. telephoned the Pulaski prison branch that he wanted to surrender.

CAME OUT GRINNING

Deputy Warden J. W. Helms said Brannon appeared at the rural home of James D. Jones and asked Jones to telephone the prison. Helms said as he drove up Brannon came out with a grin and said:

"Hi, boss."

Helms said he asked Brannon why the sudden bolt, and Brannon replied: "It was just one of those spur of the moment things."

Two others who fled with Brannon and were recaptured earlier were listed as James Roberts, 20, of Atlanta, serving 1-3 years on larceny charges, and William F. Nation, of Oglethorpe County, serving 9-12 years on burglary charges.

WORKING UNDER BRIDGE

Helms said the three were working under a bridge on Highway 247 and suddenly made a dash through an area where a number of persons were fishing. Guards couldn't fire for fear of hitting the fishermen, Helms said.

Searchers caught Roberts and Nation within a few hours. Bloodhounds kept on Brannon's trail throughout the day.

Brannon escaped from Pulaski Prison Dec. 5, 1960, while serving 4-6 years for robbery. Atlanta police said he used a straight razor in several robberies here and outran Atlanta police almost daily in footraces over the southeast section.

He was sentenced Jan. 13 to serve 6-10 additional years and was given 20-30 years to follow, suspended, before being returned to Pulaski Prison, officers said.

2 Boys Hurt As Scooter Hits Truck

Two youths were injured, one critically, Monday in a motor scooter-truck crash at North Avenue and Forrest Road, NE.

Jimmy Lamar Teems, 16, of 166 Savannah St., SE, a passenger on the motor scooter, was listed in "poor" condition at Grady Hospital with chest and internal injuries, Patrolman H. J. Fuller said.

Fuller said the rear wheels of the truck were believed to have passed over the boy's body.

Danny Aubrey Hughes, 17, of Rte. 2, Fairburn, listed as operator of the motor scooter, was treated at Grady for a leg injury, cuts and bruises and dismissed.

Fuller said he was told the truck, driven by Luther Jackson, 46, of 2749 Rainbow Drive, was attempting to make a turn from North Avenue into Forrest and was struck by the motor scooter.

Fuller said Hughes was charged with improper passing-accident, failure to have a driver's license and violating the State Motor Vehicle Law.

123 Negroes File to Transfer Into White High Schools Here

The deadline for Negro students to request transfer to white high schools next fall passed Monday with an apparent total of 123 applicants.

Atlanta school officials have 30 days from date of application—in some cases as little as 18 more days—in which to test, interview and inform students of approval or disapproval.

Here is where the 123 have asked to be transferred:

Grady—52; Brown—25; Northside—18; Murphy—6; West Fulton—4; Fulton—2; Southwest—2; Bass, O'Keefe, Smith-Hughes and Sylvan—one each.

Dr. Rual Stephens, deputy school superintendent, announced that a set of standardized academic achievement tests will be administered to applicants next Thursday and Friday.

Applicants from Howard High School will be tested at Howard and those from Washington at Washington. Others will go to one or the other of those schools.

The tests, covering English, science, mathematics and social studies, will take a total of seven hours—four hours on Thursday and three on Friday.

Standardized psychological tests, examination of student records and personal interviews will follow at later dates.

Under a court-approved plan for desegregating Atlanta schools for the first time, Negro pupils wanting to attend 11th or 12th grades in formerly white schools next year had from May 1 to May 15 in which to apply. Some filed completed applications as early as May 3.

A total of 300 picked up application blanks.

UP TO MIDNIGHT

It was technically possible for applicants to turn in requests to their principals up to midnight Monday, but after the end of the school day, the total was 123.

On the final day, 28 requested transfer.

Asking transfer to Grady were:

Howard McMullen, Robert Ealey, Catherine Stovall, Carolyn DeLois Hines, Annie Ruth Minners, Robert Morgan, Servon Taylor, Georgia Ann Butts, Samuel Rutledge and Ann Faye Middleton.

APPLICANTS FOR BROWN

Requesting Brown were:

Martha Louise Brown, John Brown Jr., Lonnie Broughton, Jerry Lee, Cleater Webb, Thomas Welch, Frank Jeffer Cook, Nettine Steed (or Grady), Barbara Ann Harper.

Others were:

Murphy—Diane Williams, Herschell Thomas; Northside—Jacqueline Mitchell, Arthur C. Simmons, William Jean Block (or Grady); Sylvan—Charsie Wright; West Fulton—William Curtis Terry, Frances Lou Jackson, Vera Mae Woods.

ferred to in indictments being heard now.

Black also denied he was offered anything to testify.

Eerlier, Townsend testified that he had contacted Chastain around the first of 1960 when he learned that the newly elected city council was planning to outlaw pinball machines when it took office.

He said he spoke to Chastain outside the latter's house and was told that it would take four councilmen to override a motion to ban the machines. He said Chastain told him it would require four-ninths of the gross income from the pinball machines to keep them in operation.

He said that as soon as he got a license to operate the machines, he began paying Chastain and Powell the money weekly. Later, he said, they demanded $100 a week on the four-ninths of the profits, whichever was greater.

He said he delivered the money in a paper sack or an envelope to Powell in Powell's barbershop on Tuesdays. He said sometimes the sum ran as high as $400.

Cullen attempted to show during the afternoon that Dixie Land Music Corp. never had a license to operate pinball machines but that only Townsend held such a license.

Townsend said he did hold such a license but had planned to get one in the name of Dixie Land Music Co. before pinball machines were outlawed.

Marietta Mayor Sam Welsch was the first witness for the state.

Welsch said that in meetings in December 1959, prior to taking office, the councilmen-elect said they would vote to outlaw pinball machines but that later Chastain and Powell stopped him on the street in front of his law office and told him that they had changed their minds.

Vandiver Defends Tech Integration

Issue Thoroughly Explored By School Officials, He Says

By MARVIN WALL

Gov. Vandiver told his weekly press conference Monday that acceptance of three Negro students at Georgia Tech had been deemed to be in the best interest of the school.

Vandiver said desegregation of Georgia Tech had been thoroughly explored by school officials and the State Board of Regents and found to be in Tech's best interest.

He also said that Georgia authorities had chosen to ignore a biracial group of bus riders who came through the state in their test of Deep South segregation practices.

The bus riders, who ran into trouble Sunday in Alabama, "were sent down here and sponsored by radical, left-wing groups," Vandiver declared.

"The authorities in Georgia thought it best to ignore them," he added.

In another matter, Vandiver took issue with Floyd Rep. Battle Hall's contention that an unexpected $1 million increase in "chargeback" funds should be used to give teachers an additional $31 raise. Hall told the State Board of Education last week that the Legislature intended that all increases in required local participation be used for teachers' salaries.

ALREADY VOTED

"Maybe Mr. Hall intended that," Vandiver said Monday, "but I don't think he can speak for the entire Legislature."

Vandiver said last week that the unanticipated extra $1 million in required local effort will be applied toward a $300 raise already voted for teachers by the past Legislature. The $1 million in state funds thus released will be held for "emergencies"—which presumably means financing the tuition grants allowed by the administration's open-schools legislation.

Vandiver refused again Monday to say what emergencies he has in mind. He also repeated his hope that funds will become available to assist counties undertaking tax revaluation programs.

ON GRIFFIN CASE

Commenting briefly on the acquittal of Cheney Griffin, Vandiver noted that under laws passed by his administration the question of whether a state employe was working full time or part time wouldn't have been involved.

A Fulton Superior Court jury Saturday cleared Griffin of charges of doing business with the state while working as a full-time state employe. Griffin maintained that he worked only part time while serving as an aide to his brother, former Gov. Marvin Griffin.

Responding to another question, Vandiver said he has not discussed with Peter Zack Geer the possibility that Geer will resign as Vandiver's executive secretary to run for lieutenant governor.

Vandiver Confers with Budget Unit

Gov. Ernest Vandiver met Monday with members of a committee which soon will begin a study of the state's budget procedures.

Vandiver said he expects the 17-man committee to visit other states as they study Georgia's budget system and anticipates "they will come up with recommendations" for the next session of the General Assembly.

Although it could not be learned immediately when the committee will hold its first meeting, it appeared it would meet soon.

Lt. Gov. Garland is scheduled to announce Wednesday the five senators he has selected for the committee, and that will complete the group.

Corps Names Mrs. Ozbirn

Georgia clubwomen this week joined other state federations in congratulating Mrs. E. Lee Ozbirn, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Washington, D.C., upon her appointment as a member of the national advisory council for the Peace Corps. Mrs. Ozbirn, international president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and well-known to Georgians through her numerous visits here, was appointed to the position by President Kennedy.

In announcing the appointment, it was pointed out that the General Federation, with a membership of more than 11,000,000 women around the world, is in a position "to help formulate public opinion for the Peace Corps as well as to help carry out its purpose."

Mrs. Ozbirn said that winning the peace requires just as much intelligent hard work from individuals and organizations as did winning the war. Because that fact has been so clearly recognized, Mrs. Ozbirn has been mobilizing every part of the strength of the Federation and planned all the programs of the departments of work, as well as committees, to contribute directly or indirectly toward "the building of a peaceful world."

The Signs of Mental Illness May Escape Victim's Spouse

CHICAGO (WNS)—Husbands and wives seldom recognize the onslaught of mental illness in their spouses. Their first reaction is almost always one of anger and outrage, which may have speeded the development of the split-personality type of mental breakdown.

These are conclusions from the first detailed study of husbands and wives of mental patients, made under the direction of Dr. John A. Clausen of the National Institute of Mental Health. The study was of 14 husbands and 10 wives of schizophrenic patients. Their marriages had averaged nine years, and in more than half the cases, the marriages were happy until schizophrenia became apparent.

In two-thirds of the cases, the sane spouse never has been able to pinpoint beginnings of insanity in the other, mainly because it was so gradual. Usually some particularly dramatic incident finally highlighted the deteriorating mental condition.

SELF ALARM

One such instance was when a wife began insisting that the alarm clock changed itself so that everybody overslept. In only a few cases could the deterioration be tied to some disturbing event on a certain day, such as the loss of a job.

However, a pattern of mental deterioration, spread over an average period of a year, emerged from the interviews in depth made by the psychiatrists to find out the danger signals which might alert other couples to what is happening to their marriage.

The most common start was a series of complaints of physical disorders which turned out to be more imaginary than real. This was followed by increased irritability.

SUSPICIONS

Then came acute suspicions —toward neighbors — fellow workers, or the spouse. Often intense jealousy of the marriage partner is the badge of the emerging mental illness.

Only two of the 24 sane spouses correctly interpreted the troubles as mental illness almost from the beginning. Half of them just became furious at what seemed to be unreasonable conduct, such as the husband's anger at his wife who kept telling him that the neighbors were spying on her.

By the time mental illness was sufficiently apparent that psychiatric help was sought, half of the deranged spouses had shown some impairment of what the psychiatrists identify as "major roles" in marriage: numerous accusations of infidelity were being made; moving out of the marital bed; psychological withdrawal; a slump in housekeeping and cooking by the wife or difficulty in holding a job on the part of a husband.

SYMPTOMS WORSE

Before actual hospitalization occurred, the symptoms became worse, with nearly all of the patients manifesting really bizarre behaviors — delusions, hallucinations, disorientation, and becoming assaultive.

Dr. Clausen and his associates have been surprised to find that although "extreme conflict may have been the pattern of marital interaction for months, as long as the disturbed wife looked after her children or the disturbed husband managed to hold his job, some personal and family integration was maintained."

In most cases, wives maintained care of their children until complete mental collapse, and most men held on to their jobs. All but two of the male patients performed their jobs more or less adequately until a month before hospitalization.

FAMILY STRAINS

The strains of family and married life apparently are much more likely to trigger mental breakdown than the job. Only one of the disturbed men surprised his associates at work by suddenly resigning his position. Later he returned and worked fairly effectively until almost the day he entered the hospital.

Unable to sort out the rational from the irrational behavior on the part of the spouse, the sane members of each pair usually took at face value what the other one did, no matter how crazy it seemed at the time.

That is, they were highly exasperated and finally enraged by the irrational behavior. If stability in the crisis was achieved at all it almost invariably resulted from almost complete psychological withdrawal. Communication between the husband and wife almost disappeared so that quarreling ceased.

TREATMENT DELAYED

Psychiatric treatment and hospitalization usually was delayed by the incident patient's protests that any move along that line merely was "further indication" of the other spouse's hostility, or by shame and mortification on the part of the sane wife or husband that such a step should be necessary in the family.

In several instances where conflict had been rife, husbands maintained an almost incredible tolerance of deviance for many months without communicating with anyone outside. Only fear for the safety and well-being of the children, or a suicide attempt, led to commitment of the wife in these families," Dr. Clausen reported.

He added that, "in four instances, where marital relationship was poor, the spouse simply called in the police to take the patient to the hospital with no attempt to persuade or explain."

NEED URGENT

While the treatment of schizophrenics currently is one of the major subjects of research in mental health, it appears from this study that it is almost as urgent to do more research into what the sane partner should do when insanity strikes he opposite member of the team.

With mental illness now afflicting at least one in every 10 persons, and one third of those who succumb to the very serious schizophrenia being married, this new and almost unexplored aspect of the problem is being highlighted.

What was the reaction of the sane wives and husbands after the hospitalization, or at least after active treatment began? "Immense relief," is the description given by Dr. Clausen and his associates. By that time they were virtually exhausted.

Federation Offers A Creative Outlet

By BETTY CARROLLTON

Bridge clubs, coffee and tea talks may be necessary outlets for the homemaker with leisure time on her hands. But the modern young matron finds it is not enough "in today's troubled world."

Based on their own experiences in the field of community service, members of the Sandy Springs Junior Woman's Club attacked the problem of how today's women can best meet the challenge of the times. Their answer: Through active participation in federated club work.

Sandy Springs juniors used this conviction as the theme for their membership drive, telling the story of club contributions through exhibits and explanations of the various departments of work to more than 100 prospective members

NEW ENTHUSIASM

Mrs. Stewart McDaniel, past president of the Sandy Springs group, pointed out that "as the young women have matured in leadership, they have accepted their roles in the community and state club work with new enthusiasm."

Mrs. Charles Harkey, retiring president, added that "the woman's club is the one organization to which a homemaker can belong and never be called upon to share the limelight with a man."

The club's membership drive was launched after a survey it made of the Sandy Springs area, revealing "a wealth of resources" among its feminine citizens who have not yet channeled their individual efforts toward organized, federated work.

Mrs. Jack Chance declared that a big objective of her department is "to understand what conservation means, and what we can do to create conservation-consciousness on the part of all our citizens."

Miss Peggy Wooten observed that "education is our most powerful weapon in our never-ending fight for democracy and world peace."

It was pointed out that an important phase of such a program is the necessity for mothers to accept the challenge of "preparing their own children at home to meet any change which they will encounter in their school and community."

"In the fine arts department," explained Mrs. Ray Champion, "we endeavor to enrich the lives of those who receive, as well as those who give. Art is a universal language, a link with people and places the world around. We believe we have helped to achieve this through our highly successful art show, held in April."

"Since virtually all clubwomen are homemakers," observed Mrs. Lyall Angevine, "the purpose of the Georgia Federation's home life department is to create in club members an awareness to re-evaluate principles, and dedicate themselves to the task of building better homes."

FOREIGN CLUBS

Mrs. W. H. Ballew reminded the women that the federation's international affairs department gives them a chance to correspond with foreign clubs, to sponsor students from other lands, and to foster a desire to learn more about neighbors around the globe.

Public service is the chief concern of the public affairs department. Through this program of work, club members become vital, vocal, responsible citizens, "informed and ready for action in the affairs of the community, state and nation."

6 DEPARTMENTS

The final division of work—Tallulah Falls School — is referred to as the Heart of the Georgia Federation. It can be a part of the other six departments because at the school, the academic program is designed to teach every student how to become a well-rounded person, ready to step into any community.

Mrs. James E. Warren, new president of the Sandy Springs juniors, told potential members that each department is important.

"To either," she added, "they make clubwomen aware of all the opportunities of life as we know it. It is an honor to be a member of a federated club anywhere, and the woman who is not affiliated with such a group is missing more than she realizes."

Mementoes of Her Job Had to Be Discarded, But Emory's Alumni Secretary Won't Forget

By JEAN DOONEY

One soldier sent her a Japanese bottle of copper sulphate. Another, a pack of German cigarettes.

"I didn't know what to do with them but I appreciated them," bright-eyed Mrs. James Duncan recalled Saturday.

She was reminiscing through her almost two-score years as Emory's alumni secretary.

There were about 400 "old grads" on hand to help.

Mrs. Duncan—Miss Bessie to hundreds of Emory men—retired with much fanfare Saturday from 37 years at the college.

'HER BOYS'

Her favorite present was a bound collection of letters many of "her boys" wrote her from overseas and from back home, after they left school.

She spent several days clearing her desk last week of the mementoes of her college career.

"It hurt to throw away the funny little gifts the boys sent me, even though I didn't know what to do with them," the dark-haired, animated little woman said.

And one of her pets is the certificate that dubs her an honorary member of the class of 1924.

Dr. Paul D. West, Fulton County school superintendent and class of 1924 councilman, was present Saturday to remind her.

ALUMNI DAY

Saturday was not only Emory Alumni Day, it was officially dubbed Elizabeth Chappell Duncan Day.

FAVORITE RETIRES
Mrs. James Duncan

Miss Bessie has not only mothered the old grads, Alumni Director Walter Davis reminded.

She took students under her wing while they were on campus, supervising their part-time work in the alumni office.

In addition to vocal appreciation, the alumns gave Miss Bessie a concrete token of their appreciation—a sizable check.

It will go into her "new house fund," Miss Bessie said, for herself and her husband, James Duncan, a retired engineering recruiter for Lockheed.

"It's not exactly a home, and it isn't new," the witty, ex-career woman explained.

It's an old cottage hanging off the side of old Fort Screven near Savannah, built along with the fort about 1812.

"You're all invited to visit us," Miss Bessie generously proclaimed. "If too many come we'll just put you in solitary confinement in the guard rooms."

Career Girl

Your Nose Does Very Well; Oh, But Lady... Your Ears!

By JUNE WILSON

Samuel Johnson said that curiosity is, in great and generous minds, the first passion and the last.

He didn't say so, but whether the mind of the working girl is great, generous or just adequate, if she indulges her disposition to inquire on the job it's possible for it to be the first passion and the last passion — simultaneously.

You don't like your nose . . . nobody ever does. But it may be that some people don't like your ears!

One secretary (rest her soul!) admitted that her ears never bothered her except when the boss closed the door to his private office.

Then, said she, a strange thing began to happen. She felt as if her ears were trying to lift from her head and fasten themselves to the door.

If you have ear trouble like this, do something about it or you, too, can lose this same gamble with occupational sudden death.

The girl with a job naturally knows a great many things about the company's business that do not appear in the published annual report.

For sure, nobody planned for her to be on the inside of these transactions, but such is the built-in hazard of many jobs.

Better you should get yourself a shock treatment every now and then to erase off-the-record things you "know" than to be a bit too curious and end up cooling your spike heels in the unemployment office.

The next time your ear trouble flares up, remember this: If you are the subject of that closed-door discussion, you'll know about it sooner than you would like to.

If it is a matter of administration, it concerns you not at all or else you'd be behind that door too.

Chances are good that you already know a great deal more than you need to know to handle your own job well.

Any other job is strictly none of your business or you would be paid for it, too.

If you feel you are on the outside looking in and it irritates you, if it is a part of your personality to trip around poking your little nose here and projecting your pink ears there . . . give it up fast, or get a job in the zoo.

There you can see through ALL the doors.

You don't know what really being on the outside is like until you are back out on the sidewalk!

Medlock Alumni Reunite Sunday

Former students of old Medlock School are invited to an annual reunion at 12:30 p.m., Sunday, May 21, at Mt. Carmel Methodist Church, Norcross.

A short business meeting will be followed by lunch. Attendees are asked to bring family Bibles and historic photographs of items. Harold Medlock and James W. Medlock Jr. are planning the event.

Check Boosts Girls' Camp

Mrs. Stan Raymond, cochairman of charity projects for the Ladies Committee of the Atlanta Variety Club, presents the group's check for more than $200 to Capt. Ernest Carey of the Salvation Army. The funds will be used to send underprivileged girls to Mountain View Camp this summer. (Staff Photo—Hugh Stovall)

Debts A Bit Much!

(In this age of the advice columnist, are you confused as to which seer to turn to? Don't be! Write to George, c/o The Atlanta Constitution. They don't come any more confused than him.)

DEAR GEORGE:

I consolidated my little debts into a big one, one giant, impossible-to-meet payment, as advised. Now I owe lots of little debts again and the big one too.

The car payment is due, the rent is due, the giant payment is due, I am too broke to take my girl out, my cleaning bill is due, my department store bill is due, my back alimony is due, I lost my last $38 in a poker game, it's four days until payday. Do you have any common sense economic advice?

B. B.

DEAR B. B.:

Yeh. You owe me 6 cents postage on your letter.

DEAR GEORGE:

The noodlehead that lives in the next apartment is driving me out of my mind.

He's some kind of an actor, always practicing roles at the top of his voice. We've got thin walls and a thick lease. He's always yelping Shakespeare so loud I can't even concentrate on "Gunsmoke," even turned up loud. (I can't turn it up too loud or the neighbors in the apartment next to me complain.)

Did you ever try to hear Gunsmoke when Matt Dillon says one line, Kitty says one line and King Lear says the next line?

This guy keeps promising to quiet down, but he keeps getting carried away with his own hamminess. Any solution?

POOR YORICK.

DEAR POOR YORICK:

Borrow a tape recorder. Record applause from your TV. Put it up close to his wall, turn it up high and let him bow himself to exhaustion.

CONFIDENTIAL TO FIDEL CASTRO: Would you mind repeating that?

Train in Meldrim Disaster Was Speeding, Court Told

SAVANNAH (UPI) — Attorney Aaron Kravitch charged Monday that a railroad train was "balling the jack" at more than 60 miles per hour when part of it toppled off into the Ogeechee River and caused the death of 23 persons in the 1959 Meldrim disaster.

Kravitch made the charge in his opening arguments as a suit for $1,050,000 against the Seaboard Air Line Railroad went to trial in federal court here.

He said his client, Herbert L. Barnes Jr., was entitled to the full amount he asked in his petition for the death of his wife and 18-month-old son in the disaster.

Kravitch charged there were signs in recent years that the Ogeechee River trestle used by trains traveling at a fast rate. He said there were more than 100 cars on the train, including two gas tank cars containing "highly dangerous and inflamable gas."

He said that Barnes' wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dixon Barnes, and his son, Ted William Barnes, were at a picnic at the Meldrim resort area and had no way of knowing they were not in a place of safety. The resort area is near the trestle.

Attorney Barney Cubbedge, representing the Seaboard Railroad, told the court in his opening argument that the railroad regretted the tragedy exceedingly but was not responsible. He said the railroad made a regular inspection of the trestle and that it was in proper shape.

"We admit the train derailed but we don't know why," Cubbedge declared.

Rep. Fowler Rips Florida Broiler Law

Alpha A. Fowler Jr. of Douglasville, chairman of the Georgia House Agriculture Committee, plans to make an official protest against Florida broiler inspection laws.

He sent a telegram to the Florida Legislature Monday asking for permission to appear before the House and Senate agricultural committees.

The telegram said:

". . . I request to be heard by your committee this week at your conveniece concerning the removal of unreasonable labeling requirements and inspection fees for the shipment of broilers into Florida, as Georgia has no unreasonable labeling requirements or inspection fees for shipment of your citrus and other products into Georgia."

Atlantan, 28, A Finalist in Met Audition

Robert Moulson, 28-year-old Atlanta tenor, was one of six finalists in the fourth annual opera audition in New York and will make his operatic debut in Italy.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Moulson of 129 Mt. Paran Road, NW, and a brother of John Moulson, who has been awarded an Atlanta Music Club scholarship and will be a member of the master class this summer at Bayreuth, Germany.

Moulson, who began singing at 19, will leave for Italy in August, and will sing roles at Milan in September in "Tosca" and "Barber of Seville."

Judges for the competition in New York were Max Rudolph, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra; Fausto Cleva, a Metropolitan Opera Company conductor, and Dino Yannapoulos, stage director of the Met.

Robert attended the University of Georgia, and studied four years at the New England Conservatory in Boston. He also has studied under Frederick Yagel, who was a tenor with the Met for 23 years.

Americans Must Earn Greatness, Says Kennedy

By PETER KIHSS
(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—President John F. Kennedy says he has been calling on Americans for specific sacrifices but finding his requests "strongly resisted by some unwilling to pay the price of national greatness."

The President has listed more than a score of requests—higher taxes, ending some defense programs and bases, a long-range foreign aid program, farm controls, price and wage levels to meet competition, avoiding missile and space work stoppages, more local effort on school and other programs, an end to racial discrimination.

He says he has "asked many talented individuals to give up a higher income to serve their country in public office (and not all have been willing to do so)." He contends he "asked the newspaper industry, without much success, to exercise more self-restraint in publishing intelligence data helpful to any enemy."

But Kennedy says he thinks Amedicans "have the will as well as the resources to prevail," and will yet do so in the cold war even if this is not as dramatic as demands of a shooting war.

The President's views were published Monday as an open letter to Alicia Patterson, editor and publisher of Newsday, a daily newspaper in Garden City, N. J. His letter, dated Thursday, replied to a telegram sent him by Miss Patterson May 4 and published by Newsday May 5.

Miss Patterson had asserted that the President had frequently called on Americans to make sacrifices, as in his inaugural speech Jan. 20 and a Chicago speech April 28. But she contended that "still we do not know what it is that must be done."

$4 Billion Voted for U.S. Health

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee, urging a fresh assault on cancer and other diseases, Monday pressed a record $4 billion budget on the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Altogether, the committee approved $48.2 million more for the department than President Kennedy allowed it to request under his revision of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's budget.

Part of the extra funds would finance retraining of workers thrown out of jobs by automation, migration of industry and other factors. The committee ordered "a really effective program" in this field.

The $4,020,134,000 approved was $150 million more than the record budget for the current fiscal year. The money was part of a $4,327,457,000 bill which also carried operating funds for the Labor department and related minor agencies.

Labor's budget was trimmed somewhat, as were some of the administrative items in the Health, Education and Welfare department's fund request.

In boosting health funds, the committee called for renewed efforts to stamp out cancer, heart disease, infant deaths, alcoholism and the special health problems of older people.

TO ADDRESS STUDENTS—ATHENS, Ga. C. L. Buckingham, general advertising manager, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., will address the seventh annual Education-Industry Conference on Advertising at the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, University of Georgia, May 24.

Danny Kaye in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Actor Danny Kaye arrived Monday for a six-day visit to promote activities of the United Nations Children Fund.

5 Accused of Taking Flier's Stolen $15,000

Five Atlantans have been charged with taking more than $15,000 which an Air Force sergeant previously had stolen from a military base, police said Monday.

The Atlanta FBI office said the sergeant, Arthur Romeo Morrissetta, 30, had been arrested at Ft. Worth, Tex., on a charge of theft of government property.

The money was reported stolen from the commissary at Shaw Air Force Base at Sumter, S.C. and Morrissetta will be returned there, the FBI said.

WAIVED HEARING

Detective A. E. Samples said one Atlantan, Gerald Lewis Dyer, 27, of a Ewing Street SW address, waived preliminary hearing Monday and was ordered held under $1,000 bond on larceny charges.

Another man waived preliminary hearing as a material witness and was placed under $300 bond.

Municipal Judge Luke Arnold continued until June 1 charges against Charles H. Reynolds, 29, and his wife, Virginia Reynolds, of a Greenwood Avenue NE address; Charles Reid, 24, of 82 Jeptha St., and Shirley Yvonne Cantrell, 26, of a North Avenue NE address.

BOUGHT CLOTHES

Samples said he was told Morrissetta hitchhiked from Savannah to Atlanta, purchased new clothing here and placed his old clothing and the money in a locker at the bus station.

After a round of Atlanta night clubs, Morrissetta rented two rooms at a downtown motel and ordered whisky, Samples related. He said a woman who visited the room found out about the money being at the locker and managed to get the key.

Reid, a bellboy at the motel, drove the woman to the bus station and they got the money, Samples said. He added the money was divided at a Greenwood Avenue, NE, apartment and Reid got more than $5,000 as his share.

Samples said he had recovered $5,928 of the missing money, most of it from Reid.

Dyer got $2,100 and he and Mrs. Cantrell rode the bus to Chattanooga, then purchased an automobile, Samples said.

Samples said Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds also had purchased an automobile.

Vets Who've Moved Should Notify VA

Veterans who have moved should notify the Georgia Veterans Administration, A. W. Tate, manager of the VA's regional office, said.

"Every month benefit checks totaling an average of $8,000 are returned to the Treasury department through failure of the veterans to leave forwarding addresses," Tate said.

Legislators Open Probe Of Teaching

The Legislative Education Committee will open a series of hearings on a broad range of education problems during meetings Wednesday and Thursday.

Among the major studies outlined for this year are those concerning teacher training, certification and compensation, and analysis of the expenditures of the public school funds on state and local levels.

Formerly known as the Jernigan Committee, the group will be headed by Floyd County Rep. J. Battle Hall as it begins the new series of studies.

Along with Hall, cochairmen are Rep. Chappelle Matthews of Clark and Sen. William A. Ingram of Cartersville. They head legislative committees which are cooperating in the study.

A group of special committees probably will be created to study school building, teacher retirement, compulsory attendance, the School for the Deaf, junior colleges and vocational education.

Pan Am Idles 250 at Miami

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pan-American World Airways announced Monday it is furloughing 250 maintenance workers at its base in Miami, Fla., because of high labor costs and the stiff competition of 19 foreign airlines.

The company said the 250 will receive severance pay but many will be offered the alternative of jobs at other Pan-American bases.

Pan-American employs 2,700 maintenance workers at Miami. The company said its pay scale is about twice what is paid by the 19 foreign airlines flying between Miami and Latin America in competition with three U.S. lines.

Body of Atlanta Airman Found After 4 Years

A rancher looking for wild horses in the Nevada mountains discovered the plane wreckage and body of Lt. Richard L. Clement, Atlantan, missing for four years.

Lt. Clement had been on a Navy training mission in 1957 when his plane went down. An extensive search was made, but no sign of the wreckage was found.

In December, 1957, the Navy declared him officially dead. He was 26.

He was a 1953 graduate of Georgia Tech.

Full military rites will be held at graveside at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at Floral Hills Memorial Gardens.

Survivors include his parents, Lt. Col. and Mrs. C. C. Clement, Atlanta, and two brothers, Capt. C. C. Clement Jr., Bamberg, Germany, and Capt. R. W. Clement, Washington, D.C.

$176.88 PER WEEK

I WANT 3 neat-appearing married men (25-50) of good character and integrity to represent a national concern. One of the largest in the nation with 25 offices established in Georgia. If you are willing to work hard for $176.88 per wk. based on commissions of 4 sales per wk. at $44.22 per sale don't pass up this opportunity if you are a man of average intelligence. I want to talk to you. know what you are probably thinking as you read this ad, the same as I thought many times when I was out job hunting, that this is just another ad with lots of promises—believe me, fellows, it isn't. It has been 8 yrs. since I have joined this organization, and I regret it wasn't 15 yrs. ago. I have made more money in 1 year with this Co. than I earned in any 3 yrs. of previous employment. I don't care what your experience has been whether selling vacuum cleaners, encyclopedias, automobiles, appliances or any other type of work. I will show you how easy it is to earn the above figure with this company. Experience is not necessary, as we give complete training. If you are selected your work will be under an employment agreement which will provide bonuses for your efforts. You will be backed by millions of dollars in advance advertising. This advertising will keep you busy calling on prospects in your area with qualified leads. You owe it to yourself to investigate this opportunity. Come in and I will prove to you that you are wasting valuable time if you are earning less than the above figure.

ALL APPLICANTS apply Mr. Maloy, Henry Grady Hotel, 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday only.

Davis to Dedicate Post Office

Rep. James C. Davis will speak at the dedication of the new Stone Mountain Post Office Saturday at 2 p.m.

The new building, constructed of brick, concrete block and Stone Mountain granite will cater to 8,663 patrons in the Stone Mountain area.

Beginning the dedication ceremonies will be a parade from the S. Main Street city limits to the new building.

Robert Holley is postmaster.

The building was constructed under the Post Office Department's commercial leasing plan, whereby it is built locally, remains under private ownership and is leased to the government.

Georgia State's Harrower to Sing in Italy

Peter Harrower, native Atlantan and Georgia State College music professor, will sing in Rome, Italy, this month.

Harrower, who teaches voice and Italian at Georgia State, has been invited to sing the role of Christ in Bach's "St. Matthew Passion" with the famed Orchestra of the Accademia di Santa Cecilia in the Italian capital.

The Atlantan studied voice repertoire at the academy during 1956-57 under a Fullbright grant and an Italian government scholarship. He also studied opera a Teatro dell' Opera in Rome. With his wife, lyric-soprano Irene Callaway, Harrower travels extensively to give duo-concerts. The couple recently returned from a 4,000-mile tour of the Southeast, averaging five concerts a week.

Harrower sings regularly with the choir at St. Mark's Methodist Church here and often with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra.

A Noble Experiment

In the hectic Kansas City baseball family, where GM Frank Lane and owner Charles Finley are reportedly on outs and assuredly on the loose, the dugout represented the last frontier of serenity for harassed Manager Joe Gordon.

During nine-inning office hours Gordon could mediate at length without benefit of unsolicited advice. While managing not to win pennants in Chicago and Cleveland, Lane has managed from box seats, bleachers, roof tops, press boxes and assorted other sites. But he has never been allowed to invade the sanctity of the dugout.

Outlar

Presumably Gordon does not know when he is well off. Here the Athletics are blitzing along at a 10-13 clip, a tremendous pace for KC, and Lane is only managing some 20 hours around the clock. At least Frantic Frank and Finley had to wait until the final out to share their genius with Gordon.

Now, however, Gordon is not only in advising distance of Lane and Finley. He will be able to procure the combined wisdom of the greatest of all managers—the baseball writers. Monday night Joe Gordon directed his Athletics from a managerial pew in the press box.

Managing from the press box, of course, is routine. It occurs nightly at every park where newspapers staff games. But having a manager in the press quarters is a novel idea. And the idea naturally came from the fertile Lane brain.

Unable to reside beside the general in the dugout during combat hours, Lane suggested that Gordon switch G-1 operations to the press box. More successful than Mohammed, Lane had the mountain brought to him.

—Management Can Share the First Guess

Lane insists that a manager can see more from the press box than he can from a dugout, not to mention all the wonderful things he can hear.

Gordon called the shots via telephone to a coach stationed in the dugout. There's merit to the plan, particularly when you're piloting a club such as KC. Irate customers will not be able to aim objects at the manager's noggin, and the pilot can say that the fans were booing the front office or the authors instead of him.

Then, too, Gordon can turn the tables and cast the blame for boneheaded decisions on Lane. Hitherto, Lane has been restricted to the second guess a la Cleveland a couple of years ago when he fired and rehired Gordon. And last season, for example, Lane might not have traded Gordon to Detroit had he been able to counsel the pilot during instead of after the game.

No manager should be within earshot of Lane and Finley on the same evening, so Lane and Finley should serve as co-pilots on alternate games. If things don't work out down on the field, the management can shoulder responsibility with the manager.

Though Finley is a newcomer among great diamond thinkers, he rapidly is establishing a name for himself. In fact, Finley acts like he owns the club, which he does, and has brazenly challenged such a renowned authority as Lane on assorted topics.

—A Managerial Match for Lane

Since Lane is unaccustomed to advice, it is only natural that friction has resulted. Reputedly the last time Lane and Finley were in complete agreement was when the new owner lured Frantic Frank away from Cleveland and announced that he had hired the greatest general manager in baseball.

The first round took place in Florida when Lane elected to shift spring training operations from West Palm Beach to Arizona. While Lane was prospecting for a new camp in Arizona, Finley decided that the A's would stay in West Palm.

Finley then decided that Lane needed assistance in promotional operations. The owner mailed out 800,000 brochures and outlined a nine-game plan for selling ducats. Thus far, the stamp expenditure is higher than total income from sales.

Finley has also found time to help Lane and Gordon appraise the Athletics. He vetoed proposed exile of pitcher Norm Bass to the minors, delayed sale of pitcher Ken Johnson and indicated in general that he may be just as great a manager as Lane.

With Lane, Finley and the writers assisting him, Gordon should be able to introduce wonderful new strategy to the ancient game.

At any rate, the great press box experiment is being closely followed in other cities, particularly at Wrigley Field. Chicago writers are hoping the scheme flops, for if all the Cub leaders move into the press box, they'll have to write in the dugout.

Fiery Solly Calls Umps 'Arrogant'...

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Solly Hemus, fiery little manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, said Monday that umpires Frank Dascoli and Frank Secory are "arrogant men."

Hemus made the statement at a Gus Fan Club luncheon. Then he repeated it Monday night on a local radio show (KDKA-AM) as he waited at Forbes Field to see if the rain-delayed game between the Cardinals and the Pittsburgh Pirates would be played.

Dascoli and Secory were not at the luncheon, but they had heard of Hemus' statement by the time they arrived at Forbes Field. (The game was postponed after two scoreless innings.)

Shortly after Hemus' blast on the radio show, Dascoli was given an opportunity to reply. He declared that "to be called arrogant is a compliment. To me, being arrogant is being firm."

"But there is a difference in who is calling who arrogant and what arrogant means. Hemus wants to do everything. He wants to manage and to run the whole show. Well, I've got news for him. I'll be in there nine innings, and if Hemus won't conform, he won't be."

HERE'S THE START SUNDAY: SOLLY, SECORY

Hemus Charged Ump, Ump Thumbed the Pilot

The rhubarb began Sunday at Philadelphia when Hemus was thrown out of a game after disputing a decision by Secory at third base.

...Dascoli Answers Card's 'A Busher'

Hemus defended himself by saying it is up to him as a manager to back up his players, adding:

"I didn't like at least three of the decisions the day before yesterday's game, and I knew as soon as I got off the bench I would be run out," Hemus declared. "But I simply had to back up my players."

Dascoli said Hemus should devote himself to managing, declaring the Cardinals "have a pretty good club and a nice bunch of fellows."

Dascoli declared that in his opinion Hemus "was a 'busher' as a player and a 'busher' as a manager."

Hemus was notified by Telegram of a $150 fine for his rumpus during Sunday's game.

The telegram, from league president Warren Giles, said "Kicking dirt on an umpire will not be tolerated and any future offense will be dealt with by our office more severely than the fine imposed in this case."

Koplitz 4-Hits Crackers

Barons on Top After 11-2 Win

By BOB PHILLIPS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Unconquered Howie Koplitz fashioned a four-hitter for his fourth victory Monday night, pitching Birmingham to an 11-2 verdict over Atlanta and into undisputed possession of the Southern Association lead.

A Rickwood Park crowd of 1,456 watched the big right-hander snip the third place Crackers' winning streak at four straight games and push them 1½ games off the pace.

Chattanooga lost to Little Rock in 10 innings, 6-5, and stands only a half game ahead of Atlanta.

Koplitz, 5-2 at Houston last year, walked three and fanned seven in pinning the defeat on starter Camilo Estevis (4-2) in the four-game series opener.

Amateur Cobby Ware and his play-for-fun partners led the way in the Atlanta Open Monday as the pros struck out trying to practice what they preach.

Ware, a ministerial student at Columbia Seminary in Decatur, played almost flawless golf, firing a two-under-par 70 for a one-stroke lead in the first round at Druid Hills.

Bruton, Brown Spark Tigers Past Orioles

Liberal Foytak Prevails, 10-5

BALTIMORE (AP)—The league leading Detroit Tigers pounded out 15 hits and scored their runs in clusters Monday night to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 10-5.

The Tigers rebounded from a doubleheader defeat in New York Sunday to increase their American League lead over the idle Yankees to three games.

Bill Bruton led the Tiger assault on Oriole loser Dick Hall and reliever Wes Stock with a triple and two singles, and every Detroit starter made at least one hit.

Detroit catcher Dick Brown drove in three runs, including two in a five-run seventh inning which broke a 3-3 tie. Charlie Maxwell, subbing for the injured Al Kaline, Norm Cash and rookie Steve Boros each drove in two runs as Detroit won its 21st game in 30 starts.

Paul Foytack was touched for 11 Oriole hits, including Whitey Herzog's third homer in the sixth.

Cepeda, Alou Pace 18-Hit Attack, 14-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Felipe Alou and Orlando Cepeda led a devastating 18-hit San Francisco assault Monday as the National League leading Giants downed the Chicago Cubs 14-1.

Alou clouted his first major league grand slam in the first inning. Cepeda knocked in five runs with two homers and a double, giving him nine homers for the year and the league's RBI leadership with 28.

PGA SILENT ON SANDERS' TOURNEY REFUSALS

From Press Dispatches

Professional Golfers' Association officials declined comment Monday on what action, if any, may be taken against Doug Sanders of Cedartown, Ga., for refusing to play in tournaments at Hot Springs, Ark., and Memphis, Tenn.

Sanders announced after winning the Colonial Invitational at Dallas Sunday that he was going to Acapulco, Mexico, with his wife, who is ill. Sanders said doctors ordered a rest for her.

"We are trying to reach Sanders to learn the facts," said Edwin J. Carter, PGA tournament director. "If he did not receive permission from Tom Black, tournament supervisor at Dallas, to drop out of the two tournaments, we may have to take action."

PGA rules provide for a fine of $500 and six months suspension for such infraction.

MORE GOLF—The USGA defended its policy of exempting certain pros from qualifying for the U.S. Open on the grounds that no harm was being done to the right of competitors. Twenty-six pros, including Gary Player, who was exempt under the rules, signed a letter protesting the new policy.

BASKETBALL—Joseph Green of New York City, identified as a co-conspirator in basketball fixes with Aaron Wagman, was named in two warrants issued in the spreading North Carolina State College basketball scandal. . . . Meanwhile, North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford said he thought a de-emphasis of bigtime basketball should be carefully considered. . . . N.C. State Coach Everett Case said, "I am now convinced that the trend must be to play our basketball with North Carolina boys. Maybe the sense of value of the New York boys is all screwed up." . . . John McLendon signed to coach the Cleveland team in the American Basketball League. . . . Sam Stith, former St. Bonaventure backcourt star, signed a contract with the New York Knicks.

Frank Lane

BASEBALL—Frank Lane of the Kansas City A's declared, "I'm no quitter and I'm not interested in any other jobs. . . ." The Mobile Bears added two pitchers, Don Corolla and Clair Hickman, outfielders Pidge Browne and Larry Click, in an effort to get out of the Southern Association cellar. . . . Chuck Comiskey, former vice president of the Chicago White Sox, said sale of the club "in excess of $6 million" has failed to materialize. . . . Florida State (20-1) was invited to play as an at-large team in the NCAA District Three play-offs June 1-3 at Gastonia, N.C. . . . All-American quarterback and baseball star Jake Gibbs of Mississippi said he would sign a major league contract after final exams May 24. Speculation centered on the Yankees, Braves or the new Houston club of the National League and a $100,000 bonus contract. Gibbs was given a new car at a "Jake Gibbs Day" Monday in his hometown of Grenada, Miss.

MISCELLANEOUS—Bill Nieder, Olympic shotput champ, was knocked out by Jim Wiley in the first round of his pro boxing debut at Philadelphia.

GEORGIA VS. TECH, EYES PERFECT YEAR

Georgia's unbeaten golfers shoot for their first perfect season since 1954 Tuesday when they battle arch-rival Georgia Tech at East Lake No. 2. The match starts at 1:30.

Coach Howell Hollis' Bulldogs warmed up for the season finale by whipping Georgia State, 24-3, on the East Lake course Monday. Jimmy Blanchard was medalist for the Bulldogs with a 71 while Bill Carroll shot a 75 to spark the Georgia State team.

Georgia will carry a 15-0 record into the match with Tech. The Bulldogs beat the Yellow Jackets earlier in a match at Athens.

Highlight of the meet will be the clash of the No. 1 men, Georgia's David Boyd of Jacksonville and Tech's Bill Ploeger of Darien.

Other Bulldog standouts are Jimmy Gabrielsen, Eddie Sams, Boog Layton, Billy Gibson and Richard Tatum. Supporting Ploeger for Tech will be Lefty Ewing, Dick Sturhahn, Dallis Copeland and Frank Landrey.

Chamblee Tips Gainesville, Newnan Shells Headland

By ROD SPICER

Tough little Paul Stephens squared a debt for Chamblee High School Monday, turning back Gainesville, 8-3, for the Region 4-AA baseball championship.

And across town Newnan's Bubba Shell also evened up a score, topping Headland and pitching rival Jimmy Robinson, 5-2, for the 2-AA crown. Robinson beat Shell in the first of a three-game series, 1-0, last Thursday.

In other AA playoffs, Crisp County swamped Cordele, 21-1, for top honors in region 1-AA after dropping an opening game, 2-1; and Dalton scored nine big runs in the third to stop West Rome, 14-5 in the first of a three-game series for the 3-AA crown.

Chamblee now travels to Thomaston to meet 1-AA champs Crisp County next Friday.

Gainesville, using many of the same men on the field Monday, battered Chamblee for the 4-AA football title last fall and a homestanding crowd was yelling for revenge.

Stephens, facing No. 1 football antagonist Preston Ridlehuber on the mound, was more than equal to the occasion scattering four hits with a like number of strikeouts.

Perhaps frustrated by erring mates, Ridlehuber had almost squared the count in the top of the sixth smashing a two-run homer to deep left to bring the score to 4-3.

But Chamblee made his term as hero short. Jimmy Partin singled, stole second on a high throw from catcher Jimmy Christopher and went to third on a passed ball. Stephens walked, Mac Roper singled to center scoring Partin and Blair Funderburk tripled, cleaning the bases. Mike Hulsey then came on to put out the fire but Chamblee had wrapped up the title.

fourth, was the only damaging blow off Koplitz, who nursed a 5-0 lead going into that round.

Pilot Frank Skaff's Barons ripped Estevis for five runs in the first two innings, then built up their lead by five tallies in the seventh and eighth at expense of Jack Smith, after Tommy Wells pitched creditably briefly before departing with a sore arm.

Birmingham slammed 13 hits, including five off Estevis at the start and seven off Smith in 4⅓ innings.

Bob Micelotta, back at shortstop after a sidelining injury, singled home two runs in the first after hits by LeGrant Scott and Stan Palys and a walk to Leo Smith set the stage.

George McCue singled in a run, and Palys singled in two more in the second. Koplitz tripled Frank Jaciuk to put himself on a 6-2 cushion in the fifth.

Jack Smith's own error on Leo Smith's popup opened the door for a three-run seventh. A squeeze bunt, Koplitz' sacrifice fly and Scott's double knocked the runs in.

Former Cracker righthander Don Kaiser (3-4) and Atlanta southpaw Larry Miller (2-1) will hurl Tuesday night's game (8:30 Atlanta time).

Grant Fires Three-Hitter As Indians Clout Bosox, 13-2

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland right-hander Jim (Mudcat) Grant fired a three-hit, 13-2 victory at the punchless Boston Red Sox Monday, a sparkling effort dented by rookie Carl Yastrzemski's wrong-field homer.

The left-handed swinging Yastrzemski spoiled a no-hit bid with one out in the fourth inning, following a walk and a force play.

Jim Piersall led a 21-hit attack against his ex-mates with four singles, bunting home Bubba Phillips from third as part of a five-run ninth. In the biggest Cleveland offensive show of the season Vic Power drove in three runs.

The Red Sox now have only 14 base hits in their last five games while losing four straight.

Pascual Handcuffs Chisox for Twins

CHICAGO (AP) — Right-hander Camilo Pascual pitched the Minnesota Twins to a 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox Monday night, scattering four hits.

Pascual, squaring his record at 3-3, never allowed more than one base runner in any inning and recorded his first shutout of the season. He didn't walk a man and struck out seven while masterfully mixing his fast ball with tantalizing curves.

A's Win, Gordon Sits in Press Box

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Manager Joe Gordon directed the Kansas City Athletics to a 5-3 victory over the Los Angeles Angels from the press box Monday night.

The A's responded to Gordon's remote control by telephone to the dugout with a rally in the eighth that won the game after Los Angeles had tied it 3-3 in the seventh.

Bud Daley was the winner, evening his record at 4-4.

Murphy Eliminated; Cadets Move Toward AAA Title

Patterson No-Hits Eagles

By PAUL ATKINSON
Constitution Sports Writer

THOMASTON, Ga.—Benedictine righthander Larry Patterson, fired 9⅓ innings of no-hit baseball here Monday, and the Savannah Cadets took a firm hold on the state AAA baseball championship.

Patterson, a slim, 6-2, 170-pound one-eyed fellow, no-hit Murphy, 3-0, and came back to stifle Griffin in a relief stint, 7-4, in the fourth game of a long day of baseball.

Patterson, who has yielded only one earned run in 54 innings, was credited with both victories, boosting his won-lost record to 7-2. He'll start what could be the championship game Tuesday afternoon at 5:30. Either Lanier, which ousted defending champion Murphy, 5-3, on lefthander Bunny Richardson's six-hitter, or Griffin, will be BC's opponent.

Lanier and Griffin play at 12 noon. The Eagles took the Poets, 3-2, in 12 innings in the first game of the day.

A crowd of around 1,000 sat in on the tournament.

It was a full day of trouble for Murphy. In the first game, the Eagles didn't hit, then when they did hit in the second game, the defense failed 'em.

Patterson was superb in his no-hitter, facing only 23 men, two over the minimum. He struck out 12 and walked three in besting double no-hit pitcher David Guthrie.

So stingy was Patterson he didn't allow a ball hit out of the infield. Second baseman Henry Bracker stole one base hit from Roy Jarrett in the sixth, turning his liner into a double play.

Lanier expelled Murphy from the tournament in a wild affair. The Poets wrapped it up in a two-run sixth-inning. Singles by Alvin Herring and John Breedlove, a gritty catcher, playing with 17 stitches in his catching hand and with his catcher's mitt tied on, and a walk to Tommy Jones loaded the bases.

That forced Crook's exit, in came left-hander Charles Burrows, to walk Richardson and force in the winning run. Lula Bell Thomas' infield out scored Breedlove.

Runs-batted-in singles by Guthrie and Jere Ard and Jimmy Battle's RBI-double had built up a 3-0 lead for Crook.

But Lanier mounted a counterrally in the fourth when Herring was hit by a pitch. He scored on Breedlove's single, and Breedlove came home moments later on a wild pitch.

An error by Richardson had given Griffin its opening victory. Richardson fielded Mickey Clark's 12th-inning bunt and threw it past third base, allowing Larry Coleman to score. Coleman had singled, and moved up on a sacrifice bunt by Ray Cole.

As usual, the little right-hander Bobby Gene Pierce was right rugged. He grudgingly yielded eight hits, set down five on strikes.

Losing left-hander Charlie Haygood deserved a better fate. Though surrendering 11 hits, he pitched shutout ball from the fourth to the 11th. Richardson threw only one pitch in relief of Haygood, then had the misfortune to misplay it.

LOGUE TO RESIGN AS AVONDALE COACH

THOMASTON, Ga.—Harry Logue, Avondale High School head basketball coach and football backfield coach, has decided to resign his position, it was learned here Monday.

Logue coached his cagers to the semifinals of the state basketball tournament this year, before they fell to eventual champion Sylvan. As backfield coach, he developed such outstanding backs as Auburn star Frank James, and 1961 prep all-America Edwin Pritchett.

He has been coaching for 15 years, the last eight at Avondale.

At the same time, it was found that girls' basketball coach Pat Nelson will also definitely leave her Avondale post.

Contacted at his home, Logue said that he was planning to tender his resignation to DeKalb County superintendent of schools Jim Cherry on Tuesday.—ATKINSON

DIAMOND DIARY

Ex-Crackers Twinkle But Not Every Night

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Only about a half dozen former Atlanta Crackers are having banner seasons in other leagues, but many have had shining hours in recent nights.

Charlie Roberts

For instance: Tim Harkness batted in 4 runs with a triple, double and single to return Spokane's Phil Ortega 10-4 victor over Salt Lake City . . . and big Jim Harwell has a 2-2 won-lost chart and 2.25 earned-run average after cutting down Tacoma, 3-1, with a five-hitter. The Spokane right-hander walked just one and fanned three.

Charlie Spell, only 2-5 for Omaha, had a shutout for seven innings against hit-happy Denver, winning by 10-3 after previously getting a 5-4 decision over the same club with two tail-end mopup innings for Gene Snyder, another former Cracker who pitched solid ball.

Jim Umbricht, again sent down by Pittsburgh, hurled a shutout for Columbus in his first 1961 International League start. . . . Noel Mickelsen of Vancouver beat Hawaii and Georgia Tech product Buddy Blemker, 6-2, with 6-hit elbowing. . . . Hal DeMars 3-hit Knoxville, 10-1, in becoming Jacksonville's first route goer of the season.

And John Stokoe, 16-8 at Yakima a year ago and 2-0 now, hurled his first shutout in two seasons, turning back Victoria for Austin, 6-0, and having a no-hitter going until Billy Shields doubled in the eighth. Tommy Aaron tagged him for another hit, a two-out single in the ninth.

No few former Crackers have worn their hitting clothes overtime in recent weeks, too. Bill Lajoie still tops Association hitters with a .391 mark, driving home 18 runs in 24 games. . . . And teammate Dick Tracewski smashed two hits in five of seven games last week. . . . Shelly Brodsky is rapping .316 for Omaha and Mike Krsnich .348 for Louisville.

Catchers Jimmy Callaway (former U. of Georgia ace) and Jim Hay, both ex-Crackers, are shelling Texas League hurling at .321 and .320 clips at Austin.

Ray Shearer made the news in odd manner, by singling, batting in a run and hitting into a double play with one swing of the bat. The Richmond slugger dumped an Angel Oliva pitch into center, scoring a runner from third, but Syracuse outfielder Richie Windle cut down Lamar Jacobs, trying to score from second, at the plate. Shearer raced for second. Catcher Sam Mauney overthrew the bag, but Windle, backing up the play, threw to shortstop Willie Maranda in time to get lumbering Shearer.

DIAMOND DIGGINGS—Chuck Weatherspoon, Wilson catcher, out-Gentiled Jim Gentile. The Carolina Leaguer hit back-to-back grand slam homers May 2, a week before Gentile did it. His third and fourth-inning socks dumped Greensboro, 9-6. . . . And Asheville's Jesus McFarlane tied a Sally League mark by belting three homers in a 12-10 win over Columbia. . . . Charlie Keller Jr. displayed some of his dad's type batting by slashing six hits in seven trips in a twin-bill for Binghamton against Williamsport. . . . Georgia Boys Dept.—Billy Moran is 26 for 71 or .366 at Toronto. Pug Churchwell is 0-2 with a 3.00 ERA at Great Falls, and Gordon Richardson has posted one of three shutouts notched by Tulsa pitchers. . . . International League teams ran 1, 2, 3, 4 in the nation's Opening Day Attendance Derby: Buffalo 20,619, Rochester 14,215, Columbus 10,552 and Toronto 10,072.

GA.-ALA. TRACK MEET CANCELED FOR SEASON

THOMASTON—The Georgia-Alabama prep track meet, scheduled for Atlanta May 28, will not be held this year because of a disparity between the states' track seasons.

Alabama's season ended two weeks ago, and the final all-class meet for Georgia will be held Saturday at Grady Stadium.

SEEN IN STANDS: A total of 17 Major League scouts, representing 14 clubs. Most of them apparently were there to watch Murphy's David Guthrie duel Benedictine's Larry Patterson.

Spotted were Leon Hamilton, president of the Atlanta Crackers and Los Angeles Dodger scout; Mercer Harris, St. Louis Cards; George Zuraw, Pittsburgh Pirates; Ray Scarborough, Baltimore Orioles; Dale Alexander and Bill Webb, San Francisco Giants; Willard Nixon, Boston Red Sox; Spud Chandler and Joe Sewell, Cleveland Indians; Hugh Wise, New York Yankees; Owen Martinez, Chicago Cubs; Tom Oliver, Minnesota Twins; Julian Morgan, Philadelphia Phillies; Jack Sanford, Kansas City Athletics; Red Marion, New York Mets; Jack O'Connor and Harry Postove, Chicago White Sox.—ATKINSON

Tom Brewer Out for Week

BOSTON (AP)—Tom Brewer of the Boston Red Sox was ordered to take a week's rest from throwing Monday after he hurt his right shoulder in one pitch against Cleveland.

Dr. Ralph McCarthy, Sox physician, gave the no - throw order when he examined the ace righthander. Dr. McCarthy said the trouble was an injured muscle in the back of the right shoulder.

Amateurs Steal Show in Open

players fired 72s, setting up a wide-open battle for the final round which will be staged at Cherokee Friday.

Gene Dahlbender Jr., that old Marching Man of the fairway, is one of those in the 72 bracket, and veteran observers still rate him the man to beat.

Joining Mr. Dolly at par 72 were Louis McLennan, the fine Druid Hills player who formerly starred at Duke University, and young Roy Ford, who does most of his golfing at North Fulton.

True to pre-tournament predictions, the pros had a bad time of it. Barry Ward, the Ansley sharpshooter, turned in the best score of the bunch—a 75—but he's five strokes off the pace. Bill Hardigree of O. B. Keeler and Bill Barker of Capital City posted 76s.

Another amateur in contention is Frank Ziegler, the ex-Georgia Tech footballer who scored 74.

Druid Hills' rolling, tricky layout, which measures 6,673 yards and has a par of 36-36—72, proved much too rough for most of the players in the field of 108.

But the course turned out to be a happy hunting ground for Ware, the native Augustan who won the Southern Intercollegiate last year when he was captain at the University of Georgia.

"I don't know when I've hit the ball any better than I did today," he said after the round.

Cobby had an unusual round of 35-35, reeling off eight straight pars and birdying No. 9, then clicking for eight more pars before birdying No. 18.

Jack MacDowall, host pro for the windup at Cherokee, has announced that all players may use the course for a practice round Thursday.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Fish Must Be Wary Of Archers Now Too

By TOM STODDARD

Tom Stoddard

Fish, which most likely have a pretty much underdeveloped moral sense, nevertheless may begin to feel persecuted beyond the call of duty come June 1.

For on that date, besides the various lures, nets, lines, hooks and dog-hair fashioned dry and wet flies, will have to be on the look-out for bows and arrows, yet.

Actually, the game fish, who have plenty to worry about already, are spared over-the-fin looks for modern day Hiawathas, since they are not fair game for archers. It's the rough fish that have to watch their flip when the season opens.

Bow and arrow fishers, like their hunting counterparts, are pretty much enthralled with the idea of cutting loose on a gar, or a carp. The idea is to hook your line onto a fish-arrow, impale your prey, and then grab your reel and go.

Those who know about such things say that the whole thing isn't particularly difficult, if you can catch a gar rolling, or a carp spawning. It's necessary, though, that your bow be strong enough to shoot an arrow say 100 yards, because with less strength than that it won't make it through the water to the target.

Lake Sinclair, a well-known needlenose gar hangout, is a top-notch area for bow hunting, and Lake Hiawassee, when carp are spawning, can also be productive.

There are also loads of gar in the swampy backwaters around Savannah, if the archer is intrepid enough to try them. Carp are locateable often in backwaters of reservoirs.

SHOOTING—Dr. Charles Lamb of Albany, Ga., won the Little River Gun Club's Tallapoosa Invitational skeet shoot, overcoming Maj. Frank Knapp of Kansas in a shoot-off, with 25 straight hits. Both men had 99x100 to tie after regular competition. Carrollton's Katy McClendon won the Ladies' championship, Felix Jackson the junior title, Steve Davis won the sub-junior, and teams from Birmingham, Ala., and Albany shared team trophies.

ELSEWHERE OUTDOORS — Carl Collins of Morgantown caught two fine catfish at Blue Ridge Lake, both weighing 36 pounds and measuring 49 and 48 inches. He used a horny-head minnow for bait . . . Don Huie, Tom Killian, Tom McClain, Herman Jones and Dub Fuller, all of Canton, got 55 bass over a two day period last week at Lake Lanier. The fish weighed from two to six pounds. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lee Evans of Canton got 10 bass at Lanier . . . E. M. Lenox caught a 7½ pound at a private pond . . . W. E. Tribble of Atlanta reported catching a 6¼ pound true smallmouth in North Carolina . . . A good many reports of fair catches of medium size bass are reported from Lake Lanier. It's expected that they'll start bedding up some soon . . . Coastal fishing is quite good, particularly around Shellman Bluff, where some speckled trout are still being caught, as well as the usual flounder. A few cobia, or ling, too, have been reported, and some Spanish mackerel in the gulf stream.

About 30 Clarksville and area people are members of the recently formed W. Habersham Rod and Gun Club, which is now holding a fishing contest for members . . . the State Game and Fish department is in the process of filming two movies on Georgia, one on deer, the other on boating safety. Shooting will continue for five or six weeks.

FISH LAW RILES CAMPER WHO LIKES TO EAT, TOO

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

I'm sure that the theory behind the laws, rules and regulations which pertain to the taking of game birds, animals and fish, is to provide the maximum pleasure for the greatest number of people.

Charles Elliott

To accomplish this, the regulations must be of such a nature that our game wealth will be equitably distributed and at the same time perpetuated. This is the reason for such things as seasons, bag limits and restrictions on the type of equipment we may use.

Unfortunately, the rules must sometimes be so broad in scope that in certain instances they tend to work a hardship on individuals or even groups of sportsmen, without in any way affecting the abundance of the game supply.

A few days ago, my old outdoor partner, Walter Shaffer, called my attention to such a rule which applied to one of his favorite trout streams. Walt was quite stirred up about it. I wish it were legal to use his choice of words, which colorfully got across the point that at least some of the restrictions are made for the convenience of the bureaucrats.

According to Walt, the regulations on management area trout streams, as set up by the Game and Fish Commission, call for getting a permit at a specified station in the morning, then checking the limit of fish at the same station before they may be cooked, or even eaten raw.

The veteran trouter finds as much pleasure in camping as he does in the actual fishing. But on this particular expedition, he claims that he had to choose between camping and fishing, because the rule simply would not allow him to do both.

"I was on Boggs Creek," he said, "that flows into the Chestatee. One of the finest sections of the stream is at least a couple of miles from where the rangers have set up their checking station. They said it was all right to drive in there and camp, but then they wouldn't sell me a next day's permit.

"The jeep trail along the creek is so rough that it would take at least an hour or more to drive down to the checking station for my permit. By the time I got back to the stream, the early morning fishing would be over.

"And then they said I couldn't even eat the fish I had caught legally, until I brought them back to the station and showed them to the rangers. With everybody coming and going to buy permits and have their fished checked, it creates a heck of a traffic hazard on almost any road along a north Georgia trout stream."

My old angling partner thought we should have Congress look into the matter, or at least call it to the attention of one of the Kennedys, since it violates his rights as an honest and legal fisherman.

Well, a rule is a rule, I suppose. The rangers must enforce what they are told to do. And I'm sure the Game and Fish Department want to know what percentage of their planted trout are harvested, and what the growth rate is, in order to set up a sound stocking program.

But on the other hand, there are guys like Walt Shaffer and Roscoe Carhart, who would never knowingly violate any rule or regulation. Those fellows believe that the best fishing is around daylight, when they're having to ride or stand in line for permits. And they've always cooked the few trout they kept, while they were still streamside in the deep woods. Hauling them miles out to a checking station and then back again to the camp frying pan, makes those trout lose a lot of their flavor.

Maybe the rule is necessary, but then again, maybe there should at least be some sort of compromise.

Mead's Thistle Takes Becalmed Farragut

Howard Mead of the Atlanta Yacht Club won the Admiral Farragut thistle championship at Knoxville Saturday, after finishing second and first in two races.

Mead, leading after the first day with his two fine Saturday races, was declared the winner when the winds Sunday were too weak for competition at the Concord Yacht Club.

W. L. Tumlin of the Atlanta Yacht Club finished third, behind Dave Minton of Columbus, Ohio.

Other Atlanta finishers were N. A. (Sinny) Sinclair of the Lake Lanier Sailing Club, and Bob Yapp of AYC, who tied for seventh, and Frank Allcorn of LLSC, ninth.

Bill Bailey of Atlanta, won the first race, but finished 14th in the second to fall out of the top ten.

Byce, Suggs Birds Capture 300-Miler

Otis Byce won the association race of 300 miles Sunday from Jacksonville, as his pigeon flew at an average speed of 1,021.95 yards per minute.

Tommy Suggs was second with a time of 1,017.30 yards per minute, and Billy Wilson and Warren Moody third and fourth.

Suggs won a club race from Jacksonville, at 965.32 yards per minute, followed by J. D. Corley, 954.87, Grady Jones, 942.39, and Johnny Eaton, 931.44.

The Atlanta racing club's next race is 200 miles from Waycross next Sunday.

McFadden Sails In To Win AYC Racing

Brad McFadden Jr. of the Atlanta Yacht Club, defending Southern Snipe champion, took a slim lead over Fred Pember in the club's snipe series in three races over the weekend.

McFaddn, who will go to Chattanooga next week to defend his title, led Pember, 1600 to 1521, after taking a first and second in Sunday races.

McFadden won the first race, followed by Pember and Joe Harmon. Dr. Sam Wood, sixth in the first race, won the second, followed by McFadden, John McDonald and Harmon.

Delta Air Lines announced that its Convair 880 jetliners flew 507,770,000 seat miles, amassing a total of 325,706,000 revenue passenger miles, in their first year of service, which was completed Sunday. The world's first airline to put the Convair jets into scheduled operation, Delta now has nine 880s and will add three more—at a cost of more than $4 million each—this summer.

Georgia Motor Trucking Association Monday won the Magna Cum Laude Safety Award of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., for its "outstanding safety program."

North American Acceptance Corp. of Atlanta Monday reported net profit of $64,855, or 6 cents a share, for the six months ended March 31, compared with 4.7 cents a share for the comparable period last year. President Sol Blaine said net current assets increased to $326,000 as of March 31, but cautioned shareholders against undue optimism in the face of such problems as high interest costs, competition in the mobile home financing field, and the continuing effects of the present recession.

All Cotton Goes Down

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 15 to 45 cents a bale lower.

Light liquidation and hedging met only limited trade demand. There was some short covering in old crop July against sales of deferred positions.

A little buying developed at the start, influenced by private crop reports which were on the unfavorable side.

POULTRY

GEORGIA LIVE POULTRY

Broilers and fryers: A fair to good ready-to-cook demand continued to clear supplies readily with some shortages in instances. Market undertone steady. Payments for broilers and fryers delivered to plants range from ½-1¼c per lb. above reported at farm prices.

Estimated slaughter by Georgia processors Monday 1,516,000 head, compared to 1,535,000 head last Monday. Georgia Poultry Exchange Friday offered 190,500 head, and sold 183,500 head as follows: 14,000 at 14.1c; 169,500 at 14.4-14.7c. Buyers tentative paying prices per lb. ranged at farms 13.5-14c, mostly 13.5c, on 1,356 000 head, which were not priced prior to Monday's movement (includes intra-company transfers).

Prices paid per lb. Crate fancy yellow corn was easier at 2.50-3.25, mostly 3.00 and white 3.50-3.75, few best to 4.00.

Sugar Futures

NEW YORK (AP)—World sugar futures were irregular.

Pakistan will be in the world market on May 25 for 50,000 tons of sugar, either raw or refined. Dealers said refined sugar is available in some countries at cheaper prices than raw sugar and they thought Pakistan would buy the refined product.

World raws were quoted at 3:40 cents a pound, loaded in the vessel.

Trade buying supported a moderate upturn in domestic futures.

Demand for refined was good. Partly on the fact that refined sugar prices are scheduled to rise later this month.

Grains Firm, Beans Lag

CHICAGO (AP)—Despite the absence of any significant bullish influence, the grain futures market worked into a generally firm to strong range on the Board of Trade. Soybeans were the only laggard.

Soybeans were guided by the markets for soybean oil and soybean meal, both of which turned easier after a firm start. Commercial demand was described as scattered and light with export business virtually at a standstill over the weekend.

'I'm Back, Mom!' Patrol Pupils Cry

The last of three groups of Georgia school safety patrol members who participated in the Silver Jubilee observance in Washington were home Monday.

Decatur and DeKalb County pupils poured out of two special trains at Atlanta's Terminal Station at noon Monday with cries of "I'm back, Mom. Let me tell you about Washington and New York!'

Some 1,100 Decatur-DeKalb patrollers had gone on from Washington for a night and day of sightseeing in Manhattan.

Boys and girls from Atlanta and Athens, Ga., schools spent their weekend in Washington, where they did their state proud in the mammoth "Tour of Youth" parade staged by an estimated 30,000 youngsters from 25 states and the District of Columbia.

Atlanta patrollers who won a parade prize as one of the best-appearing units, had the largest parade delegation of any city except Washington. On the reviewing stand were Sen. Herman Talmadge, just back from Cape Canaveral and a cruise in the Navy's Polaris submarine Abraham Lincoln, Rep. James C. Davis, Atlanta, School Superintendent John Letson and Atlanta Police Chief Herbert T. Jenkins.

Decatur-DeKalb boys and girls, originally scheduled to parade, did not march because of late trains and wet weather.

Chief Jenkins, a veteran of 15 consecutive School Safety Patrol parades, saluted this one as "the best yet." The annual observance, sponsored by the American Automobile Association, is a tribute to the nation's 770,000 school patrol members.

AAA President Charles L. Wilson pointed to a startling drop in traffic deaths involving school-age children. Since the program was launched in 1922, traffic deaths of children between 5 and 14 years of age has been cut in half, Wilson reported, while the death rate of other age groups has nearly doubled.

U.S. to Auction Million Surplus Here May 25

Over a million dollars worth of surplus government property will be up for sale at public auction Thursday, May 25.

The sale will be held in the Dixie Ballroom of the Henry Grady Hotel at 10 a.m. Property to be sold includes vehicles, trailers, forklift trucks, engines, tires, grinding and forging machines, cynamometers, railway cars and construction equipment.

Prospective buyers may inspect the property Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at four southeastern military installations: Anniston Ordinance Depot, Redstone Arsenal, Dobbins Air Force Base and Atlanta General Depot.

Rise Cost Votes, Cravey Says

Comptroller Zack Cravey Sr. says his decision to grant an insurance rate increase in 1958 "cost" him 100,000 votes but saved five insurance companies from going broke.

Cravey, who has announced already that he will run for re-election next year, said in a speech Monday he could have been a big man, a big politician" by refusing to grant what he said was a much needed rate increase. He added, however, that he used sound judgment and protected the interests of policyholders by approving the increase.

He said that the controversy that erupted made it look like "everybody was against me but the people."

Cravey created furor when he announced increases in fire and automobile insurance rates in Georgia effective Feb. 1, 1958, following a series of secret hearings. The insurance hearings have been open to the public since that time.

Cravey, who as comptroller general is also the state insurance commissioner, industrial loan commissioner and fire safety commissioner, spoke before the Belvedere Optimist Club in DeKalb County Monday morning.

Amplifying his remarks later, Cravey said he denied a request for higher fire insurance rates last July "for the simple reason that I felt the agents had not gotten the full impact of the raises yet." A majority of fire insurance contracts are written for terms of three to five years and the full effect will be realized later, Cravey said.

Cravey was introduced by Emory Thomas, a deputy insurance commissioner.

TRULY A
GOLDEN ISLE for Georgia

Jekyll Island has an impressive schedule for 1961: 60 conventions, two new motels to open, the Aquarama about ready and a championship golf course in the works. The state-owned resort area is achieving the dreams of its past as a Golden Isle. Constitution staff writer Frank Wells visits the Island to report thoroughly on the facilities, new and old. He also includes a history of the state's ownership.

AFTER LIGHTS OUT AT ZOO, THEN WHAT?

Zoos are daytime places. People don't go to the zoo at night, and the animals are probably just as glad. It's hard work performing for and amusing human beings all day. What goes on at the zoo after lights out? Fred Powledge, Journal staff writer, visits the cages and pens to report on the sleeping habits of the monkeys and elephants and what the animals do when people aren't around.
